TARIFF'S FOES SEEK TO BARE INCOME TAXES

Concerted Attack on Bill Before Senate Is Inaugurated.

REP. FREDERICK R. LEHLBACH.

BLAINE RESOLUTION DRAWS OBJECTIONS

Democrats Hope to Turn Light on Fees Paid by Favored.

STRENGTH STUDIED BY RIVAL Factions

Coalition Sees Opportunity of Confining Duties to Agriculture.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

The Democratic-Progressive coalition is determined to parade income tax returns of favor seekers, it developed yesterday as the Senate reconvened for the big tariff fight.

It has not yet determined just how to go about getting the returns but the indications are that it will develop some means of making the returns public, at least to a degree.

At the outset of the session yesterday, Senator Blaine, of Wisconsin, offered a joint resolution which in effect would make the returns public without further ado. Senator Simmons, of North Carolina, ranking minority member of the Senate finance committee, called his attention to the fact, however, that a joint resolution would also have to be adopted by the House and that body will not be back before September 23.

Available in Confidence.

But the North Carolina senator made known that he, too, had been studying the question of getting the returns and had in mind offering a resolution which would have the Senate instruct its finance committee to get them. Under the law, returns are available to the finance committee, the House ways and means committee and a joint committee on internal revenue, but available to them only for their confidential information.

It is not to be expected, however, that the finance committee would seek the returns under the circumstances without definite instructions from the Senate. Should the committee be made to get the information it would, of course, be available to the Democratic members of the committee and while, because of its confidential nature, they might be somewhat restricted in giving it publicity on the Senate floor, they would undoubtedly find some way of discussing it, at least to the extent of showing amounts of income taxes paid by interests seeking favors in the tariff and incidentally building up a picture of the same interests getting tax refunds and tariff favors at the same time.

Gardner's Tactics Cited.

It is recalled that Representative Garner, of Texas, in disclosing a heavy refund in the House several months ago, did not seem to be so much embarrassed by the restrictions about making the returns public. He managed to talk in a way that everybody understood him.

Disclosures that the coalition is determined to make use of tax returns was the high mark, if not the only material development of the first day. Only 55 senators responded to their names and because of this small attendance the tariff fight will probably not get under way until Monday. The session lasted about 30 minutes.

Democrats and Progressives are still marking time as to how to proceed in their effort to confine the bill to agricultural rates. There is a growing belief, however, that the Thomas resolution, which would strike out all except agricultural items from the bill, will be laid aside in favor of a resolution, probably by Senator Borah, of Idaho, to recommend the bill to the finance committee with instructions to report back only agricultural items.

New Difficulties Arise.

Although Democrats voted a few days ago to support the Thomas resolution, they have run into fresh parliamentary difficulties. One is that once the Thomas resolution is before the Senate it is open to amendments. Regulars could harass the measure to death because of this.

There is a feeling, too, that the resolution, in whatever form agreed upon, should be sponsored by Borah with a view to drawing out full strength.

The coalition is moving slowly to see whether it has enough votes to pass a resolution of any kind and the form of resolution finally decided upon will be influenced by the number of votes it will receive. Confidence is running high in coalition ranks, however. There are apparently well founded reports that two or more senators who voted against the Borah resolution several months ago, similar in purport to

CHARGES DROPPED AGAINST LECLERCQ

Nolle Prossse Is Entered in Case of Erstwhile Division Chief.

DIPLOMAT IN HOSPITAL

Charges of assault against Frederick Dagonet Kellogg LeClercq, as brought by several high school girls, have been nolle prossed, it was learned yesterday, and the former young diplomat is now free to leave Washington, which is understood, he plans to do today.

Acting chief at the time of the Division of Western Affairs of the State Department, LeClercq was arrested August 6 after several girl students at the summer session of Western High School had complained that he annoyed them as they rode to and from their classes on buses.

Two days later, just prior to his arraignment in court, it was announced that LeClercq had resigned from the State Department and that his resignation had been accepted. He pleaded not guilty in court to the assault charges and demanded a jury trial. A statutory charge was continued until September 5.

With verification of the report that charges had been nolle prossed by Assistant District Attorney Joseph C. Bruce, it was brought to light that LeClercq for the last several weeks, practically ever since his arraignment in court, has been a patient at Galtier Hospital.

Mr. Bruce said that the charges against LeClercq, one of assault and one statutory, had been nolle prossed largely as a result of physicians' statements that LeClercq is and has been suffering from a nervous disorder, which, it was intimated, may have been responsible for the girls' complaints.

It is understood, Bruce said, that LeClercq, who is 33 years old, plans to go to Paris, where, it is said, he will undergo treatment. Mr. Bruce added that LeClercq would probably leave Washington today for New York, whence he will sail for France.

In addition to having basked in the favor of Washington society, LeClercq, until the time of the events early in August, had been regarded as one of the most promising of the career men in the diplomatic corps. One charge of assault placed against him was based on the complaint of the daughter of a police official made to him.

It is recalled that Representative Garner, of Texas, in disclosing a heavy refund in the House several months ago, did not seem to be so much embarrassed by the restrictions about making the returns public. He managed to talk in a way that everybody understood him.

HEAT, DRY WEATHER MENACE LARGE AREA

Water Shortages and Fire Hazards in Forests Become Acute.

RAINS ARE CRYING NEED

(Associated Press)

Water shortages and forest fire hazards became more acute yesterday as the unseasonal heat wave which has gripped most of the United States and part of Canada continued. In four days.

Temperatures which had remained in the 90s along the Atlantic seaboard and the Middle West for the last three days advanced or clung to their record-breaking marks in most of the heat-infested sections. Relief in some localities from rain or high-pressure areas was short lived.

The drought which accompanied the heat wave was keenly felt by forest rangers from Michigan across into New England and south into Pennsylvania and Maryland. Hundreds of forest fires were smoldering in densely wooded areas that needed only a stiff breeze to fan them beyond control. Rain was a crying need.

The forest fire situation in Michigan was reported as the most critical in the memory of wardens, and while rain was looked for to aid fighters in the upper peninsula constant back-biting was being resorted to in the lower peninsula.

Not for many years have there been so many fires in Pennsylvania forests and they are being fought with extreme difficulty because of the dry condition of the woods.

Flames were licking at the parched mountain sides in Massachusetts around North Adams and Williamsburg and hundreds of fighters and volunteers were battling to stem the blaze. Despite their efforts the fires ate their way into Vermont, where several farmhouses were destroyed.

The fire in western Massachusetts communities found forest patrols handicapped by an unprecedented water shortage. Cisterns had long been pumped dry and trucks were being used to haul water to the fire as an approaching danger of some front.

No rain of consequence has fallen in these sections in months and these rivers dropping so low as to be inadequate to furnish water power.

New York officials said the State faces the most serious general fire hazard in 20 years and all forest lands may be closed to the public unless heavy rains relieve the situation almost immediately.

Ontario farmers are facing heavy crop losses due to the driest spell in years. This section experienced the hottest weather of the season Tuesday, but the mercury dropped somewhat yesterday.

Springfield, Mass., reported an official temperature of 99 degrees yesterday and schools, which opened Tuesday, were closed. Some parts of New England found relief from the heat in a high pressure area which moved down from Canada.

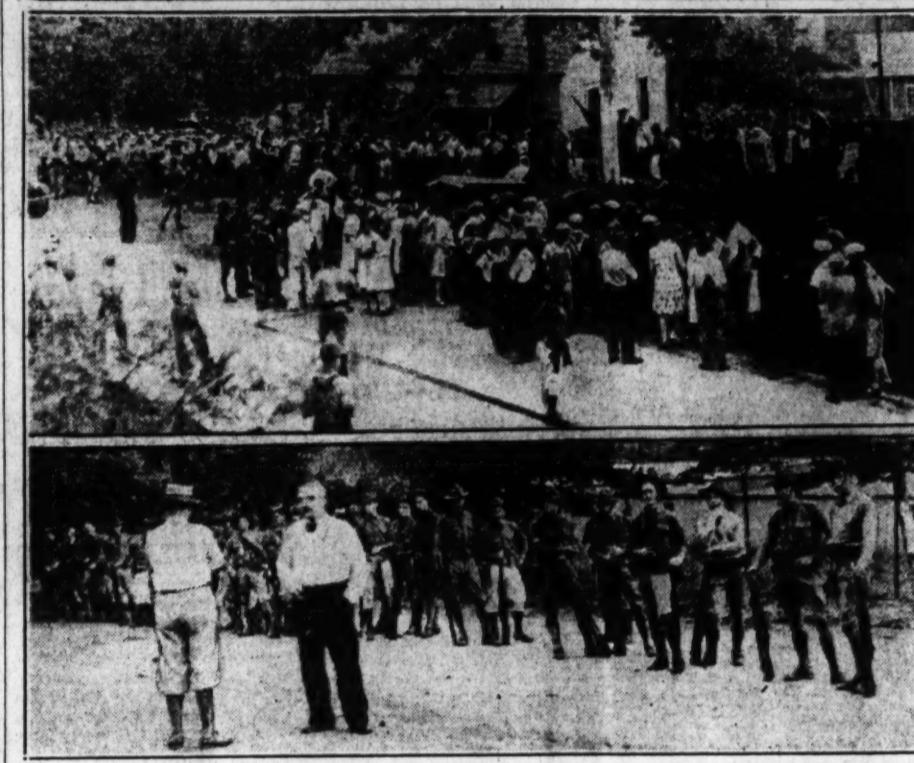

The mercury climbed to a near record at 94 in New York City in the early afternoon. The suffering was not so intense as in other hot spells.

Johns had plenty of illustrious company as he left the tournament.

WRECKAGE OF PLANE, STRUCK IN AIR BY LIGHTNING, FOUND ON DESERT WITH EIGHT DEAD

TROOPS ON GUARD IN NORTH CAROLINA STRIKE

HOOVER AND NAVAL AIDS DEBATE PARITY

President Hoping to Evade Construction of All Fifteen Cruisers.

LONG CONFERENCE HELD

(Associated Press)

President Hoover and his naval advisers had another taste yesterday of "bootlegging auto licenses," begun here today by State tag inspectors in connection with their drive against the use of foreign license plates.

Appearances here of numerous District of Columbia license plates, which sell in Washington for $1 each, prompted a check-up by inspectors which revealed they were being "bootlegged" at $6 each in Miami.

Congresswoman Ruth Bryan Owen has been asked to request District of Columbia officials to guard against any attempt at a naval parity agreement between the United States and Great Britain.

The President was still hopeful that an understanding could be reached under which it would be unnecessary for the United States to construct all fifteen cruisers called for in the present "authoriz" program of the Navy.

Approaches which have so far been made to a determination of the level of tonnage at which equality can be obtained have been based mainly, however, on the assumption that this Nation would carry out its cruiser program.

Chairman Hale, of the Senate naval committee, believes the United States ultimately will build the cruisers regardless of the nature of any agreement with Great Britain.

The position in which the ship was downed, however, indicates something.

Stowe, who was one of the ablest pilots of the service and who has shown great resourcefulness on other occasions, left Albuquerque yesterday noon and headed west into a region which was developing terrific electric storms.

There was not much in the week to tell the story of the disaster which overtook the happy argonauts of the air who had set forth in the trimotor Ford liner to the Golden West only to end in that desolation.

Evidences of the lightning bolt were there, but further details, if any, could be gained from the broken and mangled rocks, were withheld by the officials of the Transcontinental Air Transport, who ordered newspaper men off the field and gave out only the barest and most non-committal bulletins confirming the wreck.

Stowe Able Pilot.

The position in which the ship was downed, however, indicates something.

Leaving Grants, N. Mex., Stowe evidently turned north over the Navajo Indian reservation, but meeting worse weather there, veered again to the southwest and flew over Holbrook, on the Santa Fe lines. At this point he was reported by Joe Galine, a switchman, who said that the plane flew directly over his house at about noon Tuesday.

Seen at Fort Defiance.

This was at Fort Defiance, N. Mex., which is about 70 miles west of Grants, where the plane was last reported.

Stowe must have found the storms worse in the North for, after passing over Fort Defiance, he turned south and must have passed close to Gallup in the last hour of his life. Reports from that region say that tre-

Weather—Mostly cloudy today, followed by showers tonight numerous electrical disturbances occurred there at about the time the city of San Francisco must have passed.

What happened in the air during the screaming of the storms and the glare of the lightning flashes can never be told. What panic there may have been on board that leaf blown by the wind before the great crashing final bolt that sent them down will not be told. Maybe the plane will tell something of these things, but it can not be told today.

The first clue to the ship after hours of anxiety when she did not arrive at Winslow, Ariz., came from an Indian who went into the Howick trading post and told of seeing a plane in the desert 10 miles from the town with several dead people lying around it.

Scouting Party Started.

This story was not at first believed, but a scouting party was sent out to investigate, and while it was away a rumbling noise was heard at the railroad station at Thorncross, N. Mex., and reported finding the plane.

Officials of the T. A. T. were notified, and a truck was sent out to bring in the bodies, while newspaper men and officials of the company who had made search parties set out for the scene.

The wreck of the City of San Francisco is the first loss of life occurring since the line. The service was inaugurated July 8 by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, who had come alone, and carried 1,500 passengers since that date. It was announced tonight by representatives of the line.

Stowe is 29 and lives at Long Beach, Calif. He is a graduate of Kelly Field and rated a first-class pilot. He had over 3,000 hours of flying experience.

Indians Giving Thanks.

The Zuni Indians who inhabit the region where the plane came down are a Pueblo-dwelling group whose origin is unknown. Living in arid regions, where rainfall is periodical, the rain threatens them with famine. It is natural that clouds, thunder and other manifestations should receive a great deal of thought and attention in philosophic thought and religious observances.

The highest order of their priesthood is the Rainmaker and with the coming of electrical storms they frequently hold ceremonial gathering of thanksgiving for the coming of the rain. It is not unusual that in the rain storm which wrecked the City of San Francisco the Zuni Indians nearby were giving thanks for the very natural forces which wrecked the ship.

Kingsman, Ariz., Sept. 4 (A.P.)—Transcontinental Air Transport officials announced here yesterday that all drivers and nurses had left Gallup, N. Mex., for the scene of the wreck of the company's liner City of San Francisco, 23 miles south of Gallup. It was indicated this was done to provide for the remote possibility of any member of the crew or passenger list having survived and being in need of medical attention.

Official Statement.

The official announcement follows: "The T. A. T. plane lost September 3 between Albuquerque and Winslow, was just reported found by a mail carrier 20 miles south of Gallup, N. Mex., for the scene of the wreck of the company's liner City of San Francisco, 23 miles south of Gallup. It was indicated this was done to provide for the remote possibility of any member of the crew or passenger list having survived and being in need of medical attention."

The plane struck by lightning and all passengers killed.

"T. A. T. men from Winslow are proceeding immediately to the scene of the accident to make a thorough investigation. It is impossible to make a more detailed statement until their report is received."

Beck announces also that regular passenger service from Los Angeles has halted today while all available planes are searched for the missing. The first ship taking off at 8 a.m. or perhaps an hour later, depending on weather reports.

Chiropractors' Trial Again Is Postponed

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Sept. 4.—The trial of Danville chiropractors, which was to have taken place this week in the Corporation Court, has again been postponed.

Recently three Danville men, engaged in the profession, appealed to the court for injunction against the Corporation Court for alleged violation of the State law. The continuance until October was due to the inability of special counsel to be present.

New Candidate Enters Race at Harrisonburg

Special to The Washington Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., Sept. 4.—T. Ashby Long, public accountant, today announced his candidacy for city commissioner of revenue, opposing R. Lee Woodson, Democratic incumbent, in the November election. Long served as deputy county treasurer F. W. Rehder.

Long is the second candidate for municipal office to announce. E. A. Ziegler having entered the race for city treasurer last Friday.

DROUGHT THREATENS TO RUIN SHENANDOAH VALLEY CROPS

Numerous Towns Inaugurate Emergency Measures; Cattle Driven Long Distances for Water; No Rain in Two Months.

Special to The Washington Post. Harrisonburg, Sept. 4.—With Harrisonburg and other towns resorting to emergency measures to conserve their limited supply of water, the countryside literally burning up and rural families and their live stock suffering from lack of water, the Shenandoah Valley is in the throes of the most severe drought experienced here in recent years.

The corn crop, which early in the season gave promise of a bumper yield, is shriveling in the fields and gives prospects of less than 50 per cent of a normal yield. Many farmers have turned to driving their crop in an effort to prevent a total failure. Farmers and orchardists are fearful lest the lack of moisture will prevent the full development of apples. The drought took its toll in the peach crop, which now is about over.

Harrisonburg is now receiving a small supply of water from the Shenandoah Mountain source than is warranted charging them with arson.

Both women furnished bond in the amount of $2,500 for their appearance before Judge William S. Snow in Federal Court this morning. A number of others, local and company, who fought the stubborn blaze have been summoned as witnesses.

J. L. Taylor, chief deputy fire marshal of Virginia, came here from Roanoke yesterday and conferred with Police Capt. W. W. Gammill and Sgt. Sims regarding the case. It is understood, however, that Taylor will not be called upon to testify.

Irving Diener announced his withdrawal from the race for Commonwealth's Attorney of Alexandria yesterday, stating that the Democratic party, of which he is a member, had duly selected its nominee in the recent election.

As a result only two candidates are left in the election to be held on November 5. They are the incumbent, Albert V. Bryan, the Democratic nominee, and John Barton Phillips, Republican nominee.

Mrs. Mary Quinn, of this city, was reelected governor of the Virginia Chapter of the International Federation of Catholic Alumnae at an annual convention of the State body, which closed a three-day session at Richmond yesterday.

Plans for the religious survey and personal work campaign to be conducted by the Alexandria Ministerial Association will be made at a meeting of the association this morning at 10 o'clock in the Westminster Building. The survey and campaign will open Saturday.

R. C. Bowton, superintendent of public schools, met with the faculties of the various school systems yesterday and announced that everything is in readiness for the reopening of the schools this morning at 9 o'clock.

Room and class assignments will be made this morning following the enrollment of students and the actual work will begin tomorrow.

E. C. Todd has been appointed delegate of the Sarepta Lodge, No. 46, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, and Maurice Rosenberg has been named warden and official lodge agent.

Sarepta Lodge plans to stage a card party at Sarepta Hall on September 18 and an oyster supper and luncheon October 18.

An organ concert will be held this afternoon at 5:30 in the historic First Church with Lyman S. McCrary, Seminary Hill, at the console. The church, through its pastor, the Rev. C. A. Langston, has extended an invitation to the public to attend.

The annual meeting of Alexandria Fire Department Auxiliary has been called for tonight at 8 o'clock at No. 5 Engine Co. Mrs. John W. Travers, president of the auxiliary since its organization five years ago, will preside.

An informal meeting of the city council will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon in the council chamber at City Hall.

Andrew M. Graham, 91, Dies in Martinsburg

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Sept. 4.—Andrew Maxwell Graham, for more than half a century a teacher in the public schools of this county, one of Martinsburg's oldest residents and a Union Army veteran, died yesterday at his home here after an illness of six months' duration. Due to his advanced age of 91 years.

Mr. Graham during the Civil War was a member of Company F, Eighth Maryland Volunteer Infantry, and was with Gen. Grant when the surrender at Appomattox took place. Five daughters and a son survive.

Clarksburg Merchant Dies of Heart Attack

Special to The Washington Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Sept. 4.—A heart attack caused the sudden death today of Millard F. Bartlett, 72, retired merchant and Democratic leader. He is survived by his widow, a son and a daughter.

Mr. Bartlett was in personal charge of the campaign that developed at Clarksburg in 1914 in the contest by the legislature of William E. Campbell and Clarence W. Watson as Democratic United States senators in succession to Senators Nathan Bay Scott and Davis Elkins, Republicans.

Dinwiddie County Man, 73, Dies at Birthplace

Special to The Washington Post.

Malvern Springs, Md., Sept. 4.—Edward Malvern Steward, 73, of Dinwiddie County, died this morning at his home near Mamora. He had spent his entire life in the place of his death.

Sutherland is survived by his widow, Mrs. Sarah Sutherland, and several children.

Prices are going to take one more drop and then all reductions are going to disappear.

Former Associate Justice Arrested

Aylett B. Nicol, Alexandria Resident, Is Accused of Drunkenness.

Arrested by Sgt. A. F. Driscoll of Potomac, late Tuesday night on charges of drunkenness and disorderly conduct.

Aylett B. Nicol, 30 years old, former associate police justice of Alexandria, and J. R. Toy, 34, of Potomac, spent the night in the town hall, according to a news item yesterday morning on $250 collateral. They were both arrested at the home of Toy.

They will be given a hearing before Mayor Walter B. Fulton of Potomac, Tuesday night, at 8 o'clock.

Nicol recently resigned as associate police justice. He was defeated in the race for the Democratic nomination for civil and police justice in the August primary.

Villa Maria Academy and the St. James Parochial School at West Falls Church will open their 1929-1930 schools on Monday, September 9. Registration of pupils will be held at the school buildings on Friday.

The opening of the schools this year will find many changes in the personnel of the faculty. The new mother superior will be Mother Marietta, of the Order of the Immaculate Heart of Mary.

According to the contract, Mrs. O. H. O'Conor, who will be in charge of the plant, will be responsible for the establishment of a new school at the proposed site.

Belhaven Man Uninjured in Crash on Road Near Gordonsville.

AUTOMOBILE IS WRECKED

Ethan Allen Jones, 3d, 22 years old, of 1010 Prince street, Alexandria, received fatal injuries and his companion, Winslow Randolph, 25 years old, of Belhaven, Va., escaped injury about 9 o'clock when the automobile in which they were riding to Charlottesville crashed into a telephone pole and overturned near Gordonsville.

Meager details of the accident were received shortly afterward last night by Mr. and Mrs. Ethan Allen Jones, 2d, parents of the dead man, and by Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Randolph, parents of young Randolph.

Jones was reported to have received a fracture of the skull and to have soon afterward, in the offices of a physician in Gordonsville, where both young men were taken. An examination of Randolph revealed no injuries.

The two companions left Alexandria together in the machine yesterday afternoon for a brief visit with a friend in Charlottesville.

Jones, who is an employee of Standard Oil Co., leaves his parents and a sister, Mrs. William Herring.

New Business Building Is Planned in Weston

Special to The Washington Post.

WESTON, W. Va., Sept. 4.—Andrew Edmiston, Jr., has announced plans for a $60,000 building which will house a store here for the Woolworth Co., who are leasing the structure, the location being selected out of four principal cities in West Virginia.

In making preparations for the new building, tree stumps planned 50 years ago by Edmiston's father, which grew up with the city, were felled. The block is located in the center of the Weston business district.

Expansion of DuPont Factory Is Scheduled

Special to The Washington Post.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Sept. 4.—Local business men have learned that the DuPont de Nemours Co., subsidiary of the Engle Co., has appropriated $3,500,000 for expansion of its plant at Belle, a few miles east of Charleston.

The plant at Lutzow has been under way during the last year, so the new appropriation will mean continuous expansion activity for the DuPont chemical interests here for another year and a half.

The Listening Post

By CARLISLE BARGERON

THE time has now come when, if there is to be any fun in this big tariff fight, the public must definitely take sides. An equal division is not necessary, but for the purpose of sustained interest it should be as nearly equal as possible.

There is no need of trying to study the merits of the fight, the logic of the conflicting reasoning. One will only end in a blind alley. They think they will fare better by running errands for the regulars and getting little favors in return.

One may prefer the Progressive-Democratic alliance or coalition or one may prefer the regulars. All whoopee makers will, of course, take the coalitions, embrace them and adopt them as the home boys against whom the visitors or the regular Republicans will be enemies, invading hordes, always wrong and drawing derisive shots every time they score.

It makes no difference that none of the senators is home-town boy. Neither are ball players who are cheered and worshipped any more than employees, and temporary ones at that.

The point is that if one expects to get worked up about the tariff at all, and it is to be nearly an all-winter diversion and the only one, one must take sides. One may prefer the red sons of the Progressives or the cotton ones of the Democrats and together they make a happy blend, or one may prefer the aristocratic silk of the smug regulars. They must henceforth be known by these attributes because one would hardly be able to keep distinguishing them by their votes.

It is a fact that it is only by such characteristics as these that one may distinguish the two groups, that makes it futile to take sides on any division other than the broad one of the coalitions and the regulars. It is futile to say one is with those who are against the bill or with those who are for it.

The only clear definition on this question is that offered within the community where there was no employment on a large scale and he consequently was not acquainted with the problem involved in such employment on a large scale.

The President is thoroughly acquainted with the problems involved in personnel policy and the relationship of the employer and the employee.

President Symethetic.

"Hence I believe that by reason of his own experience he will give more sympathetic and more understanding consideration to your problems and to proposed legislation for the mitigation of those problems than has been given for some years by previous executives."

Leibbach recalled that Hoover, while Secretary of Commerce, had scored the retirement law. The anomaly was so unattractive and the provisions so inadequate. Hoover held that the law defeated its own purposes so far as the Government was concerned.

Hoover contended, Leibbach said, that in order to clear the service of those who by reason of old age or infirmity had been unable to work, an annuity would have to be made so attractive as not to cause the employes to fight against being retired.

In looking into the future, Leibbach said he hesitated about making any predictions about what bills will be passed. At present he does not have entire control over such things, and, secondly, because he was loath to make promises simply for momentary approbation.

Annuity Increases.

Friedrichshafen, Germany, Sept. 4 (A.P.).—The dirigible Graf Zeppelin reposed in its home hangar tonight after having set a new record for world-circling by any means and then setting up an even better mark of 20 days 4 hours and 18 minutes.

Her officers and crew, idols of a tremendous German welcome, finally obtained much needed rest after a month of blazing new air trials without any serious damage to their ship or injury to passengers. The 22 passengers, including two of the Graf Zeppelin over Europe, particularly to the Scandinavian countries and possibly to the United States next fall, providing he obtains Government permission to use the naval hangar at Lakehurst, N. J. He has made no plans for flights in the new Zeppelin, he said.

Lynchburg, Sept. 4.—Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Hawkins, of Bedford, have announced the marriage of their daughter, Miss Rosetta Hawkins, to Ernest Smith of Brookneal. The wedding was celebrated Monday at 8 p. m. at the home of the bride.

A. C. Eckener, son of the commander of the Graf Zeppelin, will join the Goodwin-Zeppelin staff here this fall, leaving for Akron shortly after his father returns to Friedrichshafen.

Dr. Eckener said he would rest a while after returning to Europe and then busy himself with completion of the new Zeppelin under construction to be completed in 1931, and which will be larger in diameter, but of the same length as the Graf Zeppelin.

Litchfield also announced Knute Eckenber, son the commander of the Graf Zeppelin, will join the Goodwin-Zeppelin staff here this fall, leaving for Akron shortly after his father returns to Friedrichshafen.

Young Eckener, son of the commander of the Graf Zeppelin, will join the Goodwin-Zeppelin staff here this fall, leaving for Akron shortly after his father returns to Friedrichshafen.

He did not explain what "units" were involved, but revealed that his corporation had kept the Dollar Steamship Lines informed of its Pacific plans and had been in touch with New York financial houses.

STRIKE DEATH CASE JURY IS COMPLETED

Farmer, Who Lost Job in Mill
Because He Was Union
Man, Last in Box.

EVIDENCE STARTS TODAY

Charlotte, N. C., Sept. 4 (A.P.)—Just as the clock on a distant church tower tolled three this afternoon, the jury in the Gastonia mill murder case was completed and a few minutes later, in accordance with the ancient formula prescribed by North Carolina statute, ten men from the ranks of labor—some of them union card holders—took the seats of the three women and thirteen male defendants into their hands.

John Phillips, a Clear Creek farmer, who had long lost his job in a mill when an "undercover" man disclosed his membership in the United Textile Workers, was the last man chosen. He was the 38th taken examined in the seven days required to select a jury.

William E. T. Canady, examining for the State, then Thaddeus A. Adams took him in hand for the stiffer examination of any since the selection of the jury began. He was 46, he said, works 96 acres which he owns, and had been a mill hand.

Union Man, Lost Job.

"Why did you quit the mills?" Mr. Adams asked.

"Somebody got into our union and gave the names of all the members to the boss and we all lost our jobs," he replied.

Defense counsel went into a huddle in which Fred Erwin Beal, chief defendant, and other prisoners joined, while H. G. Guley, head of a Raleigh detective agency in the service of the defense, nodded his head in vigorous approval. Through the courthouse the word flashed that the jury was about to be completed.

"Juror," drawled an assistant clerk, "look upon the prisoner. Prisoner, look upon the juror. Do you like me?"

"Yes," he finally answered. All in the courtroom, as one man, sank and settled back into its seats, as Judge Barnhill dismissed the handout of veniremen left and prepared to begin the actual trial of the case tomorrow.

Defense Well Pleased.

The defendants smiled and joked with one another. Evidently their counsel were well pleased. Beal, whose counsel of the chair is admittedly the greatest, grinned frankly.

The prisoners left the courtroom. Beal said surface conditions indicate fair consideration of the case.

One other juror selected today was H. T. Stillwell, who runs a "two horse" farm in Matthews. He is 46, a Baptist and has one child attending the school over which brother of the slain chief of police, O. F. Adenholt, presides.

With these two the jury consists of four farmers, two mill hands, one carpenter, one railroad machinist, one fruit dealer, one steel worker, one newsboy and one railroad clerk.

Or there, the carpenter, the machinist and the railway clerk hold union cards, and of the two mill hands and one farmer have held membership in trade unions.

Three Inquiries Into $15,000
Loss by Second National Are Pushed.

ROVER COLLECTS FACTS

Although three separate investigations of the alleged $15,000 embezzlement at the Second National Bank, 409 Seventh street northwest, are now under way, the identity of the perpetrators probably will not become known until the grand jury discusses next week.

United States District Attorney Leo D. Rover has already made preparations to present the case to the jury in the meantime accountants of the Department of Justice are working day and night checking the bank's accounts. The bonding company, which must make good the losses, and the bank are making the other investigations.

While these inquiries are going on, it is reported, Department of Justice operatives are keeping a former woman employee under surveillance, and are also "shadowing" a male employee of the bank as a possible accomplice in the defalcations.

The woman who resigned from the bank several months ago after bank officials discovered irregularities in her accounts, is still in Washington, the department reports. She had been a trusted employee of the bank for more than 20 years. The man now suspected has been with the bank for a lesser period and has held a less responsible position, at the time.

It is believed the defalcation in accounts has extended over a period of more than three years.

Proctor, Who Pioneered In Vaudeville, Is Dead

New York, Sept. 4 (A.P.)—Frederick Francis Proctor, builder of New York's first vaudeville theater and motion picture theater chain owner, died at his home in Larchmont, N. Y., today at 78 years old. Death was due to an attack of congestion of the lungs, after an illness of several months.

The veteran producer, who was one of the first theater owners to correlate vaudeville and motion pictures in the same theater, died this morning at 20 theaters in New York and New Jersey last May to Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corporation.

Bucket Shop Inquiry Is Believed Under Way

Louis Rothschild, director of the Better Business Bureau, was a witness before the District of Columbia grand jury yesterday.

The Better Business Bureau has been investigating bucket shop conditions in the District, and, while Rothschild declined to state what matter he had been called before the grand jury to discuss, it is believed that it dealt with bucket shop operations.

The Post last week concluded a series of articles exposing bucket shop operations and other swindles being practiced here.

Navy Fliers Given Crosses for Feats

Lieut. Col. Thomas C. Turner Wins Medal for Hop to Santo Domingo.

Lieut. Col. Thomas C. Turner, of the United States Marine Corps, stationed here has been awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross for his flight in 1921 from Washington to Santo Domingo City, Dominican Republic.

His citation said that it was the longest flight, in a landplane over land and water, ever accomplished by naval aviators at that time.

First Lieut. Hayne D. Boyden, at Quantico also has been awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross. "For valiant and courageous action by display of extraordinary heroism, initiative, coolness and excellent judgement when July 16, 1927, while in command of an air patrol of two planes, during an insurrection in Nicaragua, he, accompanied by the small Marine detachment at Ometepe to besiege by a vastly superior force."

"Lieut. Boyden immediately dispatched one plane for reinforcements and then in the face of hostile fire and smoke proceeded to the attack. This prompt and courageous action undoubtedly proved an important factor in the eventual relief of the beleaguered garrison."

CRIPPLES' SCHOOL ENROLLMENT SHORT

Special Classes for Colored
Students Is Likely to Be Abandoned.

15 PUPILS SET FOR QUOTA

Probability that the proposed school for crippled colored children at the John F. Cook School at Third and P streets northwest, for which funds were provided in the current appropriation, may be abandoned for the present, because not enough children can be found to complete the minimum of fifteen, was seen at the District Building yesterday.

With Money provided for establishment of special schools for cripples and for transportation arrangements would provide for such schools for white children in the Weightman School at Twenty-third and M streets northwest, and for colored children in the Cook Building. Although about 30 white children have registered for the new school, with enrollment for the new school will start September 29 at the Weightman Building, only eight have been found which the Health Department considers suited for admission to the colored classes. Officials have ruled that it would not be expedient to open such schools for less than fifteen colored pupils.

Attention of the education and health departments is concentrated now on the question of suitable equipment for one or both of the schools, especially the Health Department, anxious to have installed a complete layout for giving thorough hydrotherapy treatments, but the fund available does not provide for such equipment, although it does provide for a physiotherapist to give the children such treatments as may be required.

The entire first floor of the Weightman School is being prepared to accommodate the crippled children with two rooms for classes and others for rest and physical treatments. A new driveway is also being laid out so that school buses may drive up to the door of the building.

An Ancient Prejudice Has Been Removed

"toasting did it"—

Gone is that ancient prejudice against cigarettes—Progress has been made. We removed the prejudice against cigarettes when we removed harmful corrosive ACIDS (pungent irritants) from the tobaccos.

"It's toasted"

YEARS ago, when cigarettes were made without the aid of modern science, there originated that ancient prejudice against all cigarettes.

That criticism is no longer justified. LUCKY STRIKE, the finest cigarette you ever smoked, made of the choicest tobacco, properly aged and skillfully blended—"IT'S TOASTED."

"TOASTING," the most modern step in cigarette manufacture, removes from LUCKY STRIKE harmful irritants which are present in cigarettes manufactured in the old-fashioned way.

Everyone knows that heat purifies and so "TOASTING"—LUCKY STRIKE'S extra secret process—removes harmful corrosive ACIDS (pungent irritants) from LUCKIES which in the old-fashioned manufacture of cigarettes cause throat irritation and coughing. Thus "TOASTING" has destroyed that ancient prejudice against cigarette smoking by men and by women.

"It's Toasted"—the phrase that describes the extra "toasting" process applied in the manufacture of Lucky Strike Cigarettes. The finest tobaccos—the Cream of the Crop—are scientifically subjected to penetrating heat at minimum, 260°—maximum, 300°, Fahrenheit. The exact, expert regulation of such high temperatures removes impurities. More than a slogan, "It's Toasted" is recognized by millions as the most modern step in cigarette manufacture.

ENGLAND SEES SNUB IN U.S. NAVAL REPLY

Stimson's Statement Is Blow
at MacDonald Parity Optimism.

DAWES WILL TAKE HAND

London, Sept. 4 (N.Y.W.N.S.)—Secretary Stimson's statement that "it will still require a considerable period of hard work before an agreement on naval parity is reached" is regarded here as a distinct snub to Premier MacDonald's optimism expressed in his speech at the league assembly yesterday at Geneva.

So far as an investigation here throws light upon the incidents and evident misunderstandings of the past few days, facts that led up to the Washington damper appear to be these:

First—Disagreement as to the American cruiser yardstick, with the resulting inability to fix a total number of cruisers of battle strength to be allocated to the two navies, was the main subject of three conferences between MacDonald and Gen. Dawes last Thursday and Friday.

MacDonald Less Hopeful.

As a result of these talks, MacDonald went to Geneva in a markedly less hopeful frame of mind than he had shown in his recent conversations with colleagues and his hints in interviews at Geneva that he might not be able to go to the United States because of pressure of work probably reflected difficulties that had risen.

After MacDonald left London a dispatch from Stimson was received here and excited optimism in official circles. It was felt that important difficulties were being smoothed away, and it was after MacDonald had received this dispatch that he expressed hope to the league assembly that a preliminary agreement could be announced before the close of the present session.

Third—it was evidently felt by the Washington administration that MacDonald's optimism must be corrected, and Stimson's statement followed.

Dispatch Misinterpreted.

Inference which is drawn from these circumstances is that the latest American dispatch was misinterpreted here as implying probably American concessions and recessions, which it is now evident, Washington did not intend to hint or promise. It is felt very strongly on the part of the new cold water in public on MacDonald.

In this connection, it is important to note that this latest American message whose contents appear to have been understood here in full, which Washington does not, particularly like MacDonald, feel a statement to other naval powers that agreement between Great Britain and America would be conclusive without the consent of others, and that all conclusions come to in his negotiations with President Hoover would be thrown over the melting pot in a five-power conference for fresh debate.

MacDonald's remarks may not have meant that British naval comparisons must be made not merely with the Americans, but with those of other nations as well, and that this "string" has necessarily been tied to all British technical proposals to the United States.

CONSTRUCTION OF 15 CRUISERS IS OPPOSED BY PRESIDENT

Naval savings can be made in the naval expenditures of both countries.

Theory of "Yardstick."

Another important question which remains to be settled is how the "yardstick" theory can be applied to the navies of the two countries. This theory, it has been suggested, as a formula whereby relative fighting strength could be determined with considerations of age, armor, gunpower and speed in addition to simple comparisons of tonnage.

The first two points, it was cited in what was said tonight, involve questions of major policy of each government and are points which require careful consideration by each before any plan can be agreed to. It is because of this fact that Washington officialdom is anxious that too much emphasis be placed on the theory of "yardstick" in the negotiations.

Since the naval discussions between Prime Minister MacDonald and Ambassador Dawes opened in London the status of the negotiations has been in a state of fluctuation, sometimes on a favorable upward trend and sometimes on a downward trend. The present status, however, in unoffical circles tonight, is to have been the cause of the recall to active duty at the Navy Department of Admiral Hilary P. Jones.

Last week, when the negotiations appeared to be well on the upward trend from all indications here and abroad, the veteran of international naval negotiations was granted a return to retired status in order that he might rest. It was learned today, however, that Jones will resume his activities at the Navy Department Monday or Tuesday.

The optimistic announcement which Prime Minister MacDonald made at Geneva regarding the accomplishment of the discussions so far, and the hopes for a settlement were received here in some quarters as premature in view of the work yet to be done.

One official remarked that Ambassador Dawes once before during the conversations cautioned the prime minister not to move forward in his plans for the calling of a naval conference without further preparation and some definite objective in view.

Aside from the inner circle of some five or six persons who have been actively engaged with the president in guiding the discussions for the United States, Washington officials generally are in complete confusion on the question.

President Hoover has confined the work on the question in Washington to as few persons as possible in order that the discussions can be conducted secretly and without premature publication of details. In this way, he feels, attacks on particular phases, such as any concession which the United States might have to make in a compromise, would be avoided and the way left more clear for an acceptance in the United States of a naval agreement.

M'DONALD HOPEFUL FOR NAVAL ACCORD QUIZ BEGUN IN TRIAL OF MRS. PANTAGES

British Premier Is Optimistic
for Results of Talks With Dawes.

LEAVES GENEVA PARLEY

MISSING WITNESS FOUND

Geneva, Switzerland, Sept. 4 (A.P.)—Despite the fact that several questions still are unsettled, and among them very important ones, Premier Ramsay MacDonald honestly believes that the outstanding difficulties in the naval conversations between Great Britain and the United States are not insuperable. The British premier is optimistic for the results of his stay in London with Ambassador Dawes.

Such is the attitude of Britain's tenacious Scotch premier as summarized tonight for the Associated Press correspondent by an authorized spokesman of the British delegation to the assembly of the League of Nations.

The premier is going back to England to resume vigorously his negotiations with Ambassador Dawes.

He will take a train tomorrow night for Paris and thence fly to England, stopping at Calshot to have a look at the Schneider Cup races. Today the Labor premier lightheartedly motored to France and lunched at a restaurant on the shores of the Rhine.

On his return to Geneva that the British spokesman described the premier's attitude as that of a man who was convinced the naval conversations with the United States had reached such a momentum that it was impossible to imagine they could fail.

Disarmament experts at Geneva are all assuming that the unsettled problems touched the question of parity between the United States and Great Britain on cruiser strength.

Premier MacDonald still hopes to come to Washington despite the Labor party's lack of a majority in the House of Commons.

His fundamental idea was described today as that of wishing to establish personal relations with President Hoover and Secretary of State Stimson, as well as other American officials.

Canada, Peru, Bolivia and Cuba all contributed to today's proceedings in the assembly of the league. Both prosecution and defense employed two peremptory challenges, each excusing two men and two women for like replacements.

Six women and six men tentatively were in the jury box at the opening of court today. During the morning both prosecution and defense em ployed two peremptory challenges, each excusing two men and two women for like replacements.

Canada, Peru, Bolivia and Cuba all contributed to today's proceedings in the assembly of the league.

Both prosecution and defense announced their decision to sign the compulsory arbitration clause of the world court.

Bolivia's delegates voiced their country's devotion to the league to which they have returned after an absence.

Dr. C. C. Wu, Chinese Minister to Washington, today depicted China in measured language as a country whose long history showed that her protestations about love of peace were not mere lip service. Dr. Wu made a dignified appeal to the assembly to obtain revision of "unequal treaties" which were made with the old China.

POWERS ON THE ALERT.

Public comment here and abroad upon Prime Minister MacDonald's speech at Geneva reveals that the obstacles in the way of a general naval accord are not to be swept aside by an eloquent speech in favor of world peace. It is reported from London that the press feels some perturbation at the extent of Mr. MacDonald's commitments. The Morning Post doubts that if the British people understood the full meaning of British acceptance of the world court optional clause they would sanction it. The Times remarks that Mr. MacDonald's speech "hardly tends to abate the surprise and uneasiness created by certain passages of his statement Monday" when he raised doubts as to his proposed visit to Washington. "The abandonment of the American visit, except under a pressure of patent inexorable necessity," remarks the Times, "would be a blow to hopes built on it on both sides of the Atlantic."

Mr. MacDonald's speech conveyed the impression that only three points out of twenty remained to be settled between the United States and Great Britain, and he intimated that an agreement would be reached before the adjournment of the assembly. Secretary Stimson took occasion to curb the optimism that might have been aroused by the MacDonald speech. The points remaining to be adjusted, it appears, are the core of the whole negotiation, and much time must be spent in working out details.

The London Times, it appears to us, attaches too much importance to Mr. MacDonald's proposed visit to Washington. Informed observers have not built their hopes of an Anglo-American agreement upon Mr. MacDonald's visit, because they know very well that he will not come unless an understanding has been reached before he leaves London. His visit to Washington in the absence of a definite understanding would be most unfortunate, and it is not to be expected that he would make such a faux pas.

No doubt one of the most difficult problems in connection with the proposed Anglo-American understanding is the uncertain attitude of France and Italy. "No agreement between us two can carry very far," said Mr. MacDonald on August 21, "unless the other powers agree."

When it is recalled that the Anglo-French accord of last year created a decidedly unfavorable atmosphere in Washington, the delicate nature of the conversations between Messrs. MacDonald and Dawes may be appreciated. While the French and Italian governments are informed of the trend of the British-American conversations, Mr. MacDonald's appeal to the continental delegates to free themselves of jealousy and suspicion indicates that both France and Italy are on the qui vive in regard to any understanding between Great Britain and the United States which might be based upon the assumption that France and Italy will be willing to modify their naval programs. They would like to see Britain and America reduce naval armaments, but they wish to know, before agreeing to a conference, what they would be expected to pay as the price of a general naval accord. Two years ago neither France nor Italy was willing to take part in a naval conference, on account of their mutual fear of finding themselves at a disadvantage in the Mediterranean. There is no indication that this fear has been allayed by anything that Great Britain or the United States has done or proposes to do.

Would Great Britain be willing to yield its naval preponderance in the Mediterranean? If so, the concession would strongly appeal to both France and Italy; but they would still be called upon to agree as between themselves.

In the circumstances Senator Hale's statement that work on the new American cruisers will not be delayed is reassuring. Postponement of provision for suitable naval defense, in the hope of an early and successful world agreement on navies, would be taking too great a risk. While the nations are talking they are also building up their fleets, two of which are stronger than the United States Navy. Congress last spring wisely decided that the United States should better its preparedness while doing its share to bring about limitation of navies.

FARMERS ARE WILLIN'.

Many of the friends of the Department of Agriculture seem to fear that some of its functions may be overshadowed or absorbed by the Federal Farm Board, according to a statement made by Secretary Hyde in a speech at a farm dinner in Syracuse last week. "But," said Mr. Hyde, "the fundamental functions of the department are research—the finding of elemental facts and laws of biology and of economics regarding all the branches of agriculture and its activities, and the dissemination of the knowledge of those facts and laws to those engaged in agriculture. Into this field the Farm Board has neither the funds, the power, nor the disposition to go."

Secretary Hyde explained that the Department of Agriculture had no legal authority nor was it the suitable agency to put the facts it develops to use in every field. In consequence the department welcomes the Farm Board as an agency through which the facts can be applied. Mr. Hyde stressed the expectation that the "great commodity cooperatives which the board will foster will put its findings more directly to the service of the farm."

A novel suggestion was made by Secretary Hyde in connection with taxation. Asserting that farm taxation is much heavier in proportion to that borne by other businesses, he attributed it in part to the fact that rural schools are supported entirely, in most States, through taxation levied on the farms. A survey in Iowa indicated that farm boys and girls to the number of 200 per county are annually leaving the country to take jobs in the cities. This, thinks Mr. Hyde, is a strong argument in favor of asking the cities to share in the cost of maintaining rural schools.

Even stronger arguments might be advanced for relieving the farmer of the cost of highway building and maintenance; for not only are city residents the principal users of the highways, but the cities are supplied more cheaply with the produce of the farms, as good roads are extended into the country.

Mr. Hyde's suggestions for relieving the agriculturist of the cost of maintaining schools and highways will not meet opposition in any rural community, either in this particular section or in the West.

IN THE BACKWOODS.

It is typical of President Hoover that he wishes to extend the advantages of education to the mountain folk in the vicinity of his summer camp. Regions to which civilization has not penetrated are now rare in America. Good roads, consolidated schools, the radio and a hundred other modern conveniences have combined to improve isolated communities. But a few regions remain unpenetrated and almost unnoticed until they are brought to public attention by some special event, such as the choice of the President's summer camp.

There are many who would seek to preserve these last vestiges of primitive life in the mountains. There is a tendency to weave a web of romance about such a life, and no doubt these simple backwoods folk do furnish interesting material for the novelist or the poet. But to the mind of Herbert Hoover, engineer, the illiteracy of these people calls for action, namely, the construction of a schoolhouse and the employment of a teacher. The President is now a summer resident of the region and he is attacking the problem with the sympathy of a neighbor.

There is something quaint and satisfying in the story that President Hoover discussed educational needs of the mountain folk with "Pa" Buraker, hunter, trapper and preacher. It appears that the President will help to raise the necessary $1,400 to build a school, and that "Pa's" part of the bargain is to organize a committee of mountaineers to stimulate interest in the project. This latter obligation may be more arduous than it appears, since there has been considerable opposition to the establishment of Shenandoah National Park in that region, and it is not certain that the folk will take kindly to the encroachment of civilization.

Education of these people will no doubt mean abandonment of their native haunts. They could only employ their learning profitably by migrating to more populous communities and engaging in industry. Whether or not the change would bring them greater happiness is a question. Their continued existence in the backwoods, generation after generation, is evidence that not all people have abandoned the old adage, "Where ignorance is bliss 'tis folly to be wise."

A STUDY OF APES.

The announcement by Dr. Angell that Yale University will establish an anthropoid station in Florida for the "furtherance of fundamental psychobiological studies" was immediately interpreted as another quest for the "missing link." In the public mind this research is certain to be associated with the popular fallacy that science proclaims the ape the ancestor of man. It is unfortunate that a study of such importance to the advancement of science should be discredited by any such interpretation.

In a literal sense, science has never engaged in a search for a "missing link" connecting the human race with the anthropoids, for the simple reason that no scientist believes the ape to be the ancestor of man. It is just as reasonable to say that man is the ancestor of the ape. The theory of evolution likens each existing form of life to the twigs on the branch of a tree.

Popular misunderstanding of the theory arises from the fact that scientists believe the twig representing man and the twigs representing the apes and their ilk grew out of the same branch. The idea that the ancestral human stock will be found in the anthropoid is preposterous to the scientific man.

Study of the ape nevertheless offers a rich source of information to the psychologist and the biologist. The ape is generally chosen for research of this kind because of its close physical resemblance to man. Its primitive intelligence can be understood more readily than the complex brain of man. In the scientific quest for the elements of intelligence the ape colony to be established in Florida may become a most important laboratory. Human intellect still remains a mystery, and psychology is but in its infancy. Some of the most complex problems of the world would be solved if human intelligence and behavior were completely understood.

For the last five years Yale has maintained secretly an anthropoid colony at the university. Dr. Angell did not explain, but it appears likely that public prejudice was the outstanding cause for the secrecy. It is unfortunate that misinformed persons persist in referring to valuable experiments of this nature as quests for the "missing link."

WHAT MAKES HAPPINESS?

Who is happy? This old question bobbed up again at the International Congress of Psychology, and some of the leading psychologists of the world gave their version of what constitutes happiness. Yet the exact mixture of activity and rest, work and recreation, hardship and comfort, hilarity and sorrow, success and failure, which produces a state of bliss remains a mystery, and perhaps always will.

Prof. Goodwin Watson, of Columbia University, told of experiments with 400 students. He concluded that intelligence, race, nationality, self-support, participation in religious organizations, physical disabilities, size of home town, financial, educational or social status of family, and ability in the arts or athletics have nothing to do with the happiness of an individual. He overruled, as many others have done, the persistent illusion that wealth means happiness, and discredited good position and intellectual ability as cornerstones of happiness. Even freedom has now been crossed off the list of mental conditions conducive to bliss. The professor found that men are more likely to be happy when married. Personality was likewise discounted as a factor of contentment.

Health seems to be the only one of the old corner stones, on which theoretical bliss was built, to remain intact. Other factors influential in brightening the lives of Prof. Watson's subjects were harmonious homes, enjoyment of work, preference for adventure and responsibility, and the capacity of leadership in many of the everyday affairs of life. No one will doubt the fact, however, that all these indications of felicity may be present and yet leave many a person miserable.

Formulas for happiness are innumerable, yet there are still many doleful persons in all classes of society, and the great majority in every walk of life strike about an even balance between ecstasy and misery.

When a man finds a recipe for contentment and joy it simply means that he has found a means of satisfying himself, and perhaps others of similar mental and physical constitution. Most men and women find it necessary to work out formulas of their own in harmony with their temperament and environment. But there are millions who do not find even this a practical suggestion.

FOSHAY TOWER

By B. W. PHILLIPS,
In American Federationist.

The building trades and union labor generally in Minneapolis are joining in the dedication of the Foshay Tower as a western Washington memorial. This most unique office building, 32 stories high, is an adaptation to a commercial structure of the design and lines of the Washington Monument. Its sloping sides are brought to a peak 447 feet above the street, the white shaft reaching high above all the other buildings in the city.

Built 100 per cent by union labor, the tower has been described by the Minneapolis Labor Review, official paper of the allied crafts, as "a memorial to George Washington and a triumph for the craftsmanship of organized labor."

"Reaching upward toward the heavens," the Review continues, "it typifies the new business leadership and new spirit of Minneapolis that is bound to triumph and bring to the people of all the city the happiness and satisfaction of those who toiled to erect it.

It is a tower built by free men, for it was erected by workers who are members of trade unions; men who have a voice in what their wages and conditions are to be. It is something more than an office building. Its steel and concrete seem to radiate happiness and contentment of men who loved their work. It is in such an atmosphere that craftsmanship and artistry grow and flourish."

The tower, which was dedicated with public, civic ceremonies on August 30 and September 1, is the headquarters building of the W. B. Foshay Co., public utility, financial and management operators. Wilbur B. Foshay, president of the company, has long been a friend of union labor, and it was against numerous suggestions from other business men that he attempted an open shop job, that he insisted the structure be 100 per cent of union construction.

The inspiration for the building came to Mr. Foshay some 32 years ago when as a boy he visited the Capital and there saw the Washington Monument. Its simplicity and dignity impressed his youthful mind and he pictured a similar structure with windows which would have both utilitarian and memorial provinces. Eventually his interests became so great as to require a large headquarters and his boyhood dream was carried into effect.

The tower, however, is a most practical structure. It is set in the back-center of a half square block. The street frontages on three sides are occupied by a two-story building and it is from the court of this building that the tower rises. It measures 81 by 87 feet at the base and 59 by 65 feet at the top, the sides sloping 11 feet. At the peak revolver a 8,000,000 candle power aviation beacon authorized by the Department of Commerce.

In the part of the tour which yet lies before her, Mrs. Keyes will inevitably have some remarkable and interesting experiences. She contemplates sailing on October 11 for Punta Arenas, Chile, the southernmost town in the world, which lies not far from Cape Horn. This plan, however, is dependent upon whether or not she can obtain passage, for the boat service in ships is limited and it is always crowded to capacity. It was suggested that she might then leave a card upon the Pyrd exposition, hibernating in the Antarctic a bit farther south, but this idea did not seem to be quite practical.

Among this week's out-of-town weddings of special interest to Washington is that of Miss Pyrma Tilton, daughter of Mr. Newell Tilton and Mrs. Herbert Claiborne Pell, Jr., of New York and Newport, to Mr. John H. G. Pell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen H. F. Pell, of New York and Fort Ticonderoga.

The marriage took place Tuesday in St. Mary's Church, Portsmouth, R. I., and was followed by a reception at the villa of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Claiborne Pell, Jr., at Newport. Upon their return from a wedding trip the young couple will live in New York.

Mr. Pell is a grandson of Col. Robert M. Thompson. Col. Thompson is one of the oldest living graduates of the United States Naval Academy and is commander in chief of the Loyal Legion. The late Mrs. Thompson, formerly Alice Gibbons, was the daughter of Gov. William Channing Gibbs of Rhode Island. The stepmother of the bride and the father of the bridegroom are first cousins. Mr. Pell, who attended Harvard recently wrote a book on Ethan Allen.

The bride is the granddaughter of Mr. Poultney Bigelow, author, and great-granddaughter of Mr. John Bigelow, United States Minister to Peru, during Abraham Lincoln's administration.

Also of interest in this city is the forthcoming marriage of Miss Helen Margaret Edwards, daughter of Mrs. Olive Edwards, of New York, and the late Col. Edwards, to Mr. Charles Sherman Hough, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sherman Hough, of New York. The wedding is taking place Saturday at noon in Grace Church, Vineyard Haven, Mass., and the ceremony will be followed by a reception and breakfast at Hull House, the summer home of Gov. and Mrs. Merrimac Walker in Vineyard Haven. After a motor trip, Mr. Hough and his bride will live in New York.

Miss Margaret Wylie, daughter of Mrs. K. V. H. Wylie, will be a bridesmaid for Miss Edwards.

Senator and Mrs. Charles L. McNary, of Oregon, have returned to Washington from their ranch in the Willamette Valley, Oregon, where they spent July and August, and are again in residence at the Mayflower.

Cochinodore Johann Theede, of the German yacht Hahl, which was awarded the Hoover trophy at the races held in Marblehead, Mass., the middle of August, is the guest of Mr. Joseph Moehs at the Mayflower. Commodors Theede is accompanied by Paul Lubeseder and Hans Rueter, members of the Hahl crew. They have just completed a trip through the Middle West and will be back in New York Saturday for their hotel in Kiel.

The marriage of Miss Katherine Amory, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Copley Amory, and Lieut. Douglas B. Smith, U. S. A., took place yesterday at noon at Walpole, N. H., with guests from Washington, New York and Boston to witness the ceremony in the First Congregational Church and to attend the reception afterward at the Walpole Golf Club.

The Amorys are Bostonians, who have made their home in Washington for several years. Their daughter made her debut here. At present they spend their summers at Matamak River, Quebec, Canada, but they formerly had a summer home at Walpole and Miss Amory elected to be married in the little New Hampshire town. Lieut. Smith is a Texan by birth and the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Smith, San Saba, Tex.

The Rev. Robert Holt, pastor of the church officiated, and the church was decorated for the occasion with yellow gladioli and greenery. The yellow note was repeated in the graceful chiffon frock of the bride's only attendant, Miss Susanne Bradley, of Washington. The bridegroom will be best man and Miss Amory three brothers, Mr. Copley Amory, Jr., Mr. Forbes Amory and Mr. Thomas C. Amory, served as ushers.

The bride's gown was of white net, made on the traditional princess lines which are so chic and becoming. She wore the traditional tulle veil.

DISTRICT BUDGET CUT IS DEMANDED

Commissioners Are Notified to Explain Estimates for Fiscal Year.

HEARING OCTOBER 21

The District Commissioners were notified yesterday to appear before the Budget Bureau on October 21 to explain the unusually large operation allowances asked for the District for the 1931 fiscal year.

The Bureau is starting this week to clip the estimates of the Federal departments to keep their operating costs for 1931 at a total not higher than that appropriated for the current fiscal year, and hearing of the District's estimates is scheduled as the last to be held by the Budget Bureau before it completes its compilation of the annual budget for presentation to Congress.

Although Maj. Daniel J. Donovan, assistant budget officer, is now working to trim the District's estimates in an effort to reduce the total approximately $2,000,000 to the $45,000 limit set for the District, it is understood that the Commissioners will make a strong fight to have the original tentative budget figures approved.

The revised budget is to be returned to the Bureau by September 15, accompanied by a list of supplemental items made up chiefly of those removed from the tentative estimates.

The tentative budget, which called for a total of slightly more than $46,000,000, was submitted to the Bureau on Aug. 20, and surplus funds now credited to the District, so that the $46,000 allocated to the District would represent only the estimated revenue available for the coming year and would not cut into the surplus on hand. The estimated requirements also are about $2,000,000 above the total of $46,000,000 approved for the current year, which figure was set by the Budget Bureau as the limit within which the District should confine its expenditures during the 1931 fiscal year.

Pair Beaten to Death With Ax While Asleep

El Paso, Tex., Sept. 4 (A.P.)—Mrs Irene Waitt, 36, and Gordon Rose, a soldier at Fort Bliss, were slain in the Waitt home here late last night by the son of her husband, H. F. Waitt, who admitted he had beaten them to death with an ax.

Both were killed as they slept. Waitt is a member of the medical detachment at Fort Bliss. The 7-year-old son of the Waitts was sleeping in the same room but was unharmed. Waitt surrendered to police.

17 Die, 20 Hurt as Fire Destroys Powder Plant

Brescia, Italy, Sept. 4 (A.P.)—Seventeen persons, mostly women, were burned to death today in a fire in a powder plant at Castenedolo. Twenty others were injured, some of them seriously.

Of 57 persons working in the factory, only one escaped with minor injuries. Workmen of adjoining plants organized relief work. The powder factory was completely destroyed.

U. S. PLANS REFUND OF EXCESS DUTIES

Customs Heads at New York Discuss New System for Fixing Fees.

CITE HIGH DECLARATIONS

New York, Sept. 4 (N.Y.W.N.S.)—The problem of how Americans who have paid excess duties on goods brought home from foreign lands may get some or their money back will be taken up at a series of conferences which F. X. A. Eble, commissioner of customs at Washington, will hold tomorrow with New York customs officials.

Eble arrived in New York today immediately after it had been discovered that many Americans returning from the countries had paid more than they ought to do on imports because, rather than making their declarations on the basis of European wholesale costs, which is all the tariff law demands, they had been declared the purchases at the retail price paid.

System Worked Out.

He conferred with Assistant Collector of the Port Henry C. Stuart and Appraiser of the Port J. H. Kracke, after which he declared that a system had been worked out, founded on the principle of giving a general sanction of the tariff law, which would lessen over payments in the future. He also said that only about one-third of the home-coming tourists had brought home more than the $100 minimum merchandise which is allowed duty free, and added that a large portion of this one-third had probably paid more duty than required.

The problem that next presented itself was how best to return some, or all, of the extra payment to the tourist. This posed a incorporate, but Eble and New York officials stumped, but it was made known that it would be gone into thoroughly at another series of conferences to be held tomorrow, and no help could be reached. Eble said he was in no position even to guess in dollars and cents the amount the Government had collected.

Eble Cites Example.

Eble's plan to mitigate conditions for the rest of the passengers, of which he said was not authorized by the tariff law, but which he thought would help. This plan is to charge the lowest, or a low intermediate rate of duty on all merchandise over the $100 fair allowance. He cited a hypothetical example.

"Merchandise valued at $125 is brought in. Part of this has a duty of 80 per cent. And another part has a duty of 25 per cent. Of course, the 80 per cent is allowed without duty. Then, on the intermediate we levy only the 25 per cent duty so that part of it, legally taxable at 80 per cent of its value, is allowed entry at the lower rate. In this way the cost of the product and the retail value is balanced."

"We want to see," he said, "that the returning American is not taxed in excess of what the tariff requires. Just how to reach an inflexible and fair plan to do this at the present time is next to impossible for the reason that it is difficult to determine the European costs of production."

"The tentative plan of using the lower rate, or a rate which strikes a fair balance between the lowest and the highest rates applicable to any lot of merchandise, is a suggestion of the tariff law which requires that the full duty shall be collected. The law, however, specifies European costs and not retail prices."

MAJ. WOOD FOUND DEAD IN AIRPLANE

A small biplane near the wreckage of the plane after locating the plane late yesterday.

In the cabin cockpit they found Wood's torn body, resting directly behind the big 425-horsepower motor.

The ship had not burned, but a wing was gone. Gasoline leaked, it was believed to have been exploded by a bolt of lightning.

Smith and Louie expressed the belief that Wood had driven his machine into the heavy electrical storm that struck this district Monday. Apparently, they said, the rippling crosswinds unbalanced the ship and it spun around, dropping it into a tail spin. Helpless, the plane probably dropped crazily to earth and was demolished.

There were indications that the motor had been running when the ship struck.

Thus was completed a tragic tale.

taken place before, American participation might well have been realized several years ago, he said.

The problem now will go before the assembly of the league for approval.

This is considered a mere formality.

Sir Cecil Hurst, representing Great Britain, pointed out that the assembly's prerogatives in connection with requesting the court to give advisory opinion is affected by the protocol and thus the assembly's approval is essential. The protocol doubtless will be opened for signatures by all states. The conference today proceeded with the idea that the United States Senate will ratify this.

Elihu Root is considered to have found an ingenious way of getting around the famous fifth American representation concerning advisory opinion from the world court. The reservation which leaves interpretation to members of the court, gave the United States veto privileges on the right to ask for advisory opinion.

It said that the court could not, without the consent of the United States, give opinion on a question in which the United States possessed or claimed an interest. Mr. Root's formula provides for negotiations between the United States and the council of the league in each individual case when the United States has an opportunity to ask for advice.

It is judged that such negotiations would lead to an agreement whether an opinion should be requested.

U. S. PLANS REFUND OF EXCESS DUTIES

Customs Heads at New York Discuss New System for Fixing Fees.

CITE HIGH DECLARATIONS

New York, Sept. 4 (N.Y.W.N.S.)—The problem of how Americans who have paid excess duties on goods brought home from foreign lands may get some of their money back will be taken up at a series of conferences which F. X. Eble, commissioner of customs at Washington, will hold tomorrow with New York customs officials.

Eble arrived in New York today immediately after it had been discovered that many Americans returning from other countries had paid more than they should in duty on imported articles because, rather than making their purchases on the basis of European wholesale cost, which is all the tariff law demands, they had been declared the purchases at the retail price paid.

System Worked Out.

He conferred with Assistant Collector of the Port Harry C. Stuart and Appraiser of the Port J. H. Kracke, after which he declared that a system had been worked out, founded on mathematical logic, but without mention of the tariff law, which would lessen importers' profits in the future. He also said that only about one-third of the home-coming tourists had brought home more than the $100 worth of merchandise which is allowed duty free and admitted that a large portion of this one-third had probably paid more duty than required.

The problem that next presented itself was how best to return some, or all, of the excess payments to the tourists. This poses temporarily had Eble and his Yonkers officials stumped, but it was made known that it could be gone into thoroughly at another series of conferences to be held tomorrow and hope was held that some workable solution would be reached. Eble said he was in no position even to guess in dollars and cents the amount the Government had collected.

Eble Cites Example.

Eble's plan to mitigate conditions for the returnees was one which he said was not authorized by the tariff law. "I don't know what help would help," he said. "This plan is to charge the lowest, or a low intermediate rate of duty on all merchandise over the $100 fee allowance. He cited a hypothetical example:

"Merchandise value at $125 is brought in. Part of this has a duty of 90 per cent. And another part has a duty of 25 per cent. Of course, the $100 worth is allowed without duty. Then, on the remaining $25 we levy only the 25 per cent duty so that part of it is legal. The 90 per cent of its value, is allowed entry at the lower rate. In this way the cost of the product and the retail value is somewhat balanced."

"We want to see," he said, "that the returnee American is not taxed in view of what the tariff requires. Just how to reach an inflexible and fair plan to do this at the present time is next to impossible for the reason that it is difficult to determine the European costs of production."

"The tentative plan of using the lower rate, or a rate which strikes a fair balance between the lowest and the highest rates applicable to any lot of merchandise, is not sanctioned within the tariff law which requires that the full duty must be collected. That is, however, specific European costs and not retail prices."

PROUD OWNERS OF WINNING DOLLS IN CONTEST

In the cabin cockpit they found Wood's torn body, resting directly behind the big 425-horsepower motor.

The ship had not burned, but a wing was gone. Gasoline leaked, it was believed to have been exploded by a bolt of lightning.

Smith and Lorraine expressed the belief that Wood had driven his machine into the heavy electrical storm that struck this district Monday. Apparently, they said, the rippling crosswinds unbalanced the ship and, when the wings exploded, threw it into the air. However, the plane probably dropped rapidly to earth and was demolished.

There were indications that the motor had been running when the ship struck.

Thus was completed the tragic tale Miller told. The mechanic remembered an explosion while he was in the engine room, and the ship having hurried into space. As he lost consciousness he remembered pulling the rip cord of a parachute strapped to his back. He knew nothing more till daybreak, when he found himself prostrate on the desert. A search party, after wandering aimlessly, had brought him here. He did not know what had happened to Wood or the plane.

Wood was wearing a parachute, but aviators said he would have had little opportunity to stricken himself from the cabin in an emergency which probably occurred with lightning-like suddenness.

Wood was the last entrant in the nonstop race, which had been safely completed three others in the competition with the national air races at Cleveland. Two days before motor trouble had forced him down in New Mexico, and he returned to Los Angeles to start again.

The pilot was unmarried. His home was in White Sulphur, W. Va., and he was president of the Northern Airways. He had been flying since the war.

U. S. TERMS TAKEN BY WORLD COURT

taken place before, American participation might well have been realized several years ago, he said.

The protocol now will go before the assembly of the league for approval. That conference will be more formal. Sir Cyril Hurst, representing Great Britain, pointed out that the assembly's prerogatives in connection with requesting the court to give advisory opinions is affected by the protocol, and thus the assembly's appointment is essential. The protocol's dubiety will be opened for signatures by all states. The conference today proceeded with the idea that the United States Senate will ratify the protocol.

Edgar Root is considered to have found an ingenious way of getting around the famous fifth American representation concerning advisory opinions from the world court. This reservation, which proved unacceptable to the League of Nations, gave the United States veto privilege on the right to ask for advisory opinion. It said that the court could not, without the consent of the United States, grant opinions on questions in which the United States, its possessions or claimants as interest. Mr. Root's formula provides for negotiations between the United States and the council of the league in each individual case when the United States has any opinion to offer, to propose to ask for advisory opinion. It is judged that such negotiations would lead to an agreement whether an opinion should be requested.

CHILDREN'S HOME REPORT SUBMITTED

Charlottesville Annual Review Depicts Task of Directorate.

WORK GROWS YEARLY

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Sept. 4.—The work of the Children's Home, it is growing from year to year, a report just issued by the board of directors shows. A total of 215 children have been cared for at the institution during the past ten years. Of this number, 104 came from Albemarle County, the report states.

Two hundred children have received appointments to the Miller School, near Crozet, this county, where they may continue their studies until they reach the age of 17; three have received treatment at the Blue Ridge Sanatorium, the State's newest tubercular institution, located near Monticello, and one child is now a pupil in the Institute for the Blind, in Staunton, Va.

Three little girls have been sent to the rebuilding home at Mission in Greeneville, Tenn., Miss Park, of the Episcopal Church, and one little boy is at the Margaret Paxton Memorial Home at Leesburg, Va.

Twenty-four inmates of the home attended the public schools of Charlottesville last session. Of this number, 20 were admitted with distinction. Thirty-five children have used the home as a day nursery while mothers were at work. Many of these were sent to school.

A total of 150 children have been returned to their parents when conditions in their homes were such that they could not be cared for. The Circuit Court has placed a number of children in the home, while the Juvenile Court has sent children to the institution to remain until domestic differences of parents or other conditions are adjusted.

Three weeks ago seven children from one family, their ages ranging from 2 to 10 years, were taken into the home, when their mother was removed to a hospital because of injuries sustained at the hands of the father.

On entering the home the children are taken at once to the University of Virginia Hospital for medical examination, and treatment is given them whenever necessary, free of charge.

The Rev. W. Roy Mason, of the Episcopal Church, chairman of the board of trustees; Nat Burley, secretary, and G. F. Spitzer, treasurer. Other members are B. F. Dickerson, A. F. Howard, W. A. Irving, J. W. Walker, Dr. Halstead S. Hedges, the Rev. Edwin S. Sweeney and W. B. Murphy.

The following compose the board of lady managers: Mrs. Charles F. Harris, chairman; Mrs. Malcolm Firth.

vice chairman; Mrs. G. F. Spitzer, secretary. Mrs. Birdie W. Herndon, corresponding secretary; Mrs. J. H. Lindsay, Mrs. H. O. Deane, Mrs. R. E. Carter, Mrs. W. A. Irving, Mrs. J. Dean Thimmin, Mrs. L. Grant, Mrs. H. G. Groutin, Mrs. J. Walker, Mrs. L. C. Northern, Mrs. H. H. Walker, Mrs. D. C. Smith and Mrs. Campbell.

The board of county women includes: Mrs. H. D. Newcomb, chairman; Mrs. A. C. Joy, treasurer; Mrs. E. W. Moore, Mrs. Elizabeth T. Minor, Mrs. B. I. Wood, Mrs. Charles Price, Mrs. B. C. Cook, Mrs. R. L. Page, Mrs. Charles Dorrier, Mrs. Lindsay Pitts, Mrs. C. E. Blue, Mrs. Charles Tenant, Mrs. Henry Kelley and Mrs. Murray Boocock.

Staunton Council Stages Milk Row

Health Board Physicians Resign, but, at last,

Reconsider.

Special to The Washington Post.

Staunton, Va., Sept. 4.—City council and city health board members got together last night and smoothed over their differences.

The meeting was called following the resignations of Dr. J. Fairfax Fulton, chairman, and Dr. J. B. Callett, members of the health board, following a public discussion on the milk situation. In the controversy the charge was made that Staunton has been giving furnished milk, the bacteria count of which was entirely too high, making the product a menace to consumers.

Mayor Julius L. Witz followed with a statement that if the milk supply had not up to standard the health board had the power to stop its delivery. The next step was the resignation of Drs. Fulton and Callett.

Following last night's meeting it was announced that the doctors had agreed to withdraw their resignations, and Dr. Callett, who had been named a committee of one to meet with Drs. Fulton and City Attorney Peyton Cochran to consider a new milk ordinance.

During the night the fire got a new hold and crossed into the fishing preserve at Catoctin Furnace, owned by Lawrence Richey, secretary to President Hoover. Charles Enders, caretaker at the preserve, called Mr. Richey in Washington and was advised to notify Col. D. John Markey, commander of the First Infantry, Maryland National Guard.

Col. Markey rounded up 50 men supplied them with picks, shovels and other equipment from the local hardware and sent them to fight the fire. They succeeded in stopping the blaze before it did much damage to the preserve.

The fire fighters are working in ten and twelve hour shifts. The blaze, which they have surrounded, is tendency to spread toward the edge of Catoctin Furnace, but intervening cleared ground protects the town.

Pressure remains low over and east of Newfoundland, 29.62 inches, and over Atlantic, the Pa. 29.58 inches, and over Mexico and the Gulf Coast, 29.50 inches.
Wednesday, 29.60 inches. Pressure is high from Alaska southward over the Rockies and the Great Plains. The Wyoming and Colorado fronts have moved eastward and become considerably cooler in Maine and eastern Canada. The cold air has moved southward from the Great Lakes and Minnesota southward to the Ohio River and the Tennessee Panhandle.

The western trough of low pressure will move eastward during the next two days, and it will be attended by rather general rain. It will be light, if any. However, there will be little if any precipitation in the Atlantic States.
Under the influence of the disturbance of the disturbance, cooler weather will overspread the entire eastern half of the country. The air will become cooler as far east as the Appalachian region Thursday night and in the Atlantic States Friday.

Today's True Detective Story
By VANCE WYNN
The Man From Providence

THIS is the story of a stranger from Providence who was arrested in St. Louis at the time of the World's Fair on the charge of passing counterfeit $5 bank notes.

He was taken into custody at the race course shortly after he had given one of the bogus notes to one of the "bookies" at the track. He was highly indignant at his arrest. What man would not be under the circumstances? But the police held on to him like grim death because the counterfeit note which he had passed was similar to dozens of others that had been discovered in other parts of the country.

Brown told a perfectly reasonable story. He said that he had come from home for the sole purpose of visiting the exposition and that on the previous evening he had gone to the Union Station for the purpose of checking his grip and arranging for his return ticket. Just as he had concluded this, he said, the electric lights were turned on in the station and he saw a white envelope lying on the floor. He picked it up and found the 100 pieces of $5,000 in bank notes. Amazed at this discovery, he hurried to the offices of the St. Louis newspapers and inserted "personal" describing the nature of his find and saying that the owners of the property could obtain it after the proper identification. No one had called to claim it, so Brown had gone to the race track and had placed a bet just before he was arrested.

"That," he concluded, "was the first intimation I had that the money was not perfectly good. I am a respectable business man and if you doubt my story, you can telephone to the bank, the newspapers and the leading citizens of my home town for a verification of what I say."

The detectives did telegraph and the replies they received were entirely in favor of Brown. They did more than this; they made a careful investigation of his story and found that the facts he had stated were substantially correct.

They were prepared to release the man but before doing so telephoned to Washington for instructions.

In reply to that telegram the chief of the United States Secret Service hurried to St. Louis and took personal charge of the case. He had an extended interview with the prisoner and then, to the surprise of all concerned, ordered his release. The effect upon Brown was神奇的; his drooping spirits were revived and he even accepted an invitation to go to a high-class restaurant and take dinner with the head of the Secret Service.

In the meantime that gentleman had made a second careful investigation into Brown's story, and had discovered that it contained a single flaw. It was that the lights in the Union Station were not turned up until 40 minutes after the time stated by the prisoner.

At the dinner the two men discussed the counterfeit notes in a casual way. Brown said that he was willing to assist in bringing the culprit to justice, especially as he had been made a victim of the bad money. Suddenly the detective turned upon him and said in a low, determined tone:

"Brown, what do you do with the Vitaphone which is on my desk in my office in Providence?"

"I don't know," was an utterly unexpected answer. "It is the man in 'unprepared. Almost unconsciously he answered:

"It is between two leaves back of a safe door which is on my desk in my office in Providence."

"What does it keep busy for some time after?" asked the end the receiver for the plates was found exactly where Brown had said it was hidden. The plates were recovered and destroyed and the clever counterfeiter given a long term in the penitentiary. The flaw on his alibi was exposed. The carefully planted "personal" had also proved to be of no avail—a proof that talent, even of the highest order, is wasted and mistaken when applied to unlawful pursuits.

Chain Banking Spurs Hopes in Middle West

Chicago, Sept. 4 (A.P.)—Some observers believe that the spread of chain banking throughout the country has given Middle Western cities a special advantage. They forecast that some of the larger banks in Chicago and other centrally located cities will find themselves in strategically strong position to organize chain banks on a national scale.

There are approximately 26,000 independent banks in the United States. In England, where the melting down process occurred long ago, there are a few great central banks with branches throughout the British Empire.

VITAPHONE

in
'SAY IT WITH SONGS'

The Great Radio Romance

Now you can hear Vitaphone at its best! On the third anniversary of the birth of this new amusement miracle, Al Jolson, pioneer Vitaphone star, returns to demonstrate the surprising strides this marvel of the movies has made in the intervening years.

In "Say It With Songs," Warner Bros. present the final fruit of three years of sensational development. The day of experiment is over. Full accomplishment is here in this great epic of emotion.

Only Vitaphone could have given you the true Al Jolson, the Jolson who took the world by storm in "The Jazz Singer" and "The Singing Fool"—for this amazingly magnetic star had to be heard to be appreciated.

And only Vitaphone could tell a story such as "Say It With Songs"—a story of searing heartache eased by a moving melody—the story of a high romance that is first shattered and then remolded by—a song!

If you thought, as most everybody did, that "The Singing Fool" was the most gripping entertainment even Vitaphone could produce, see "Say It With Songs" and admit you were wrong.

You've never heard Al Jolson sing so many haunting hits. You've never seen him act so stirringly. "You ain't seen nothin' yet"—until you see "Say It With Songs."

19 Football Games to Be Broadcast

NBC Schedule Includes Yale-Georgia at Athens, Ga., and Navy-Notre Dame at Baltimore, Both on October 12.

Football enthusiasts from coast to coast who follow the great inter-collegiate contests by radio face the most interesting season in the history of broadcast football this year, according to an announcement made yesterday by the National Broadcasting Co.

Nineteen outstanding inter-collegiate football games will be described for listeners through the company's networks this fall, according to the announcement.

The first two games will go on the air October 12 and the last game description will be broadcast December 28 when the Army eleven goes West to meet the Leland Stanford team at Palo Alto, Calif.

Almost every Saturday will give radio listeners a choice between two outstanding grid contests, according to the schedule. A complete schedule has been sent to Pacific Coast group stations associated with the NBC, and officials in the division of office at San Francisco will select the game of most general interest for a tie-in with the transcontinental circuit.

The Navy battle with Notre Dame, to be played at Baltimore, and the Yale-Georgia game at Athens, Ga., will be the two contests to be described October 12.

While all of the nineteen games scheduled for the season are definitely scheduled, the names of the contesting teams in two contests are being withheld for a short time by agreement between officials of the National Broadcasting Co. and the athletic organizations involved.

New improvements in broadcast equipment, to be used this year for the first time, will make the broadcast story of the games more colorful and exciting than in previous years, it was stated.

The names of the announcers to describe the games will be revealed later, in an announcement from the NBC said. The complete schedule of games follows:

October 12—Navy vs. Notre Dame at Baltimore; network including WJZ.

October 12—Yale vs. Georgia University at Athens, Ga.; network including WEAF.

October 19—Harvard vs. Army at Soldiers Field, Boston; network including WJZ.

October 19—Game to be announced later; network including WEAF.

October 26—Army vs. Yale at Yale Bowl, New Haven; network including WEAF.

November 2—Princeton vs. Chicago at Princeton Stadium; network including WJZ.

November 2—Navy vs. University of Pennsylvania at Franklin Field, Philadelphia, Pa.; network including WEAF.

November 9—Army vs. University of Illinois at Champaign, Ill.; network including WEAF.

November 9—Harvard vs. Michigan at Ann Arbor; network including WJZ.

November 16—Yale vs. Princeton at Yale Bowl. Network including WEAF.

November 16—Game to be announced later; network including WEAF.

November 23—Ohio State University vs. University of Illinois at Columbus; network including WJZ.

November 23—Harvard vs. Army at Soldiers Field, Boston. Network including WEAF.

November 28—University of Pennsylvania vs. Cornell at Franklin Field, Philadelphia. Network including WJZ.

November 30—Dartmouth vs. Navy at Franklin Field, Philadelphia. Network including WJZ.

November 30—Army vs. Notre Dame at Yankee Stadium, New York City. Network including WEAF.

December 7—Georgia Tech vs. University of Georgia at Athens, Ga.; network including WJZ.

December 28—Army vs. Leland Stanford at Palo Alto, Calif. Network including WEAF.

STOCK MART'S TONE TURNS REACTIONARY

Fifful Selling Waves Check
Bull Movement; Recent Leaders Hit.

CALL FUNDS 9 PER CENT

New York, Sept. 4 (A.P.)—The bull movement on the stock market appeared to have spent its force today, and fulful waves of selling impeded an emphatically reactionary tone to the list.

Wall street was inclined, once more, to worry about the credit outlook, but regardless of other factors, the bidding up of stocks last week had yesterday been so rapid that conservative traders felt that a corrective reaction was due.

The weekly Wednesday uneasiness over an increase in the Bank of England's discount rate, which would be announced before the opening tomorrow, was again a factor, but sterling held fairly steady, and private advices from London indicated that it was felt the expected increase would be postponed for another week.

The monthly stock exchange total of member companies, however, amounted after the close, gave traders something to think about with another increase of more than $400,000,000, carrying the total close to $8,000,000,000 and representing an increase of more than $2,000,000,000 in the past year and about $1,200,000,000 in the past three months.

Huge Upturn Unexpected.

This huge upturn was more than the weekly Federal Reserve figures had led Wall street to expect, although they include transfers, they showed a gain of $257,000,000 for the four weeks ended August 26.

Call money held at 9 per cent all day and bankers stated that credit requirements for new movements were delaying the return of funds to the center after the month-end disbursements. It was pointed out that increasing demands for commercial credit as the autumn activity gets under way will also tend to keep money tight.

With the enormous absorption of funds by the stock market, despite the increase in New York Reserve Bank's rediscount rate, there was much speculation as to what further moves might be made by the reserve authorities might take.

Business news continued favorable.

Sam Roebuck announced that August sales were up a new high record for that month, more than 20 per cent above those of last year. Aug. reported little change in the iron and steel industry, indicating that no marked recession is expected during September, and that fall demands which can not yet be clearly predicted, will not be felt until the new production in August set a new high record for that month, close to the July total. Further firmness in copper prices was noted and oil operators in the Oklahoma City pool were said to have agreed to petition for a 30-day shutdown.

Recent Leaders Are Hit.

Shares which have run rapidly late were those which felt the brunt of the selling. Such issues as United States Steel, American Can, Telephone, American Water Works, Atchison, Chesapeake & Ohio, Consolidated Gen., International Harvester, John Morrell, R. H. Macy, New York Marine, Northern, Eastern, Union Pacific, United States Industrial Alcohol, and Stone & Webster lost from 3 to 6 points. Columbian Carbon, Standard Chemicals and Westinghouse lost about 5 points each. Auburn Auto tumbled 19 points and Adams Express, a highly mercurial issue, tumbled 90 points to 800 in a small turnover.

Speculators on the two favorites of last year, General Motors and Radio, in an effort to stop the tide of selling, Radio was hauled up more than 11 points to 100%, the highest price in months, in a turnover of nearly 400,000 shares. General Motors closed up more than 3 points above 75, to 78. Trading in these two issues alone accounted for approximately 15 per cent of the day's turnover on nearly 4,700,000 shares.

Coppers Again Accumulated.

Coppers were again under accumulation. Greene Cananee rising 3 points to a new high at 108. While the rails were generally heavy, Readings mounted about 10 points to a new high. This reflected a strategic position in the Eastern market situation, and much of the stock is closely held.

Dupont rose nearly 10 points to a new top, with an upturn in General Motors and American Rolling Mill, rose to a new top at 137. It was announced it had leased rights to it continuous rolling process to States Steel.

Commodities were generally lower. Cotton lost from $1.10 to $1.00 a bale on reports of beneficial rains in the South. Wheat lost more than 20 cents on weak foreign markets, and corn was lower on the weather.

In the generally steady foreign exchanges, Sterling cables held at 4.84 25-32.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, Sept. 4 (A.P.)—A reaction in the New York cotton market today, owing to a more favorable weather outlook and realization after reports of a decline in cotton prices in the southwest. October contracts broke to 19.30 in the late trading and closed at 19.30 in the regular session. Close of the previous day. The general decline of 22 to 30 points.

The opening was steady at a decline of 1 point, but the market was often promoted by relatively easy Liverpool cables, except for the first hour, continuing the recent buying movement. This was encouraged by expectations of a bull market in the future, and the result and the failure of overnight weather reports to show any fresh rain in the southwest. October closed up to 19.40 and March to 20.00 on a spirit of buying interest, but the market was still the weekly weather review. The demand was rather unsettled and the last hour trading, when October sold down to 19.30, was a more favorable sign. It looked as if bullish features in this market were to be more than the market could count. At any rate, the market soon turned around and closed at 19.30. The demand for cotton or to take profit on its current purchases, was increased by the forecast of a low pressure area moving across the west of the country. Another private crop report was issued, placing the crop at 13.5 million bales, according to the latest statistics at 59.9 and the indicated yield at 13.5 million bales, 60.9 million bales. Exports today, 15,580, making 323,800 bales for the month.

NEW YORK MONEY MARKET

New York, Sept. 4 (A.P.)—Call money stayed 6 cents higher, 30 days, 8% 6/8, 60, 90 days, 8% 6/8, to 8 months, 8% 6/8. Prime commercial paper, 6% 6/8. Gold, 2.50%. Bar silver, 32¢. Mexican dollars, 39¢.

COTTON OIL MARKET.

New York, Sept. 4 (A.P.)—COTTON-OIL OIL—Price crude, nominal, prime summer spot, 9.25; September closed 9.40; October (old), 19.33; October (new), 18.97; December, 18.67; January, 19.36; March, 19.30-31.

IRONSIDES WINS MILE IN FAST TIME AT BELMONT

Pete Wrack
Is Victim of Poor Ride

Finishes Third After
O'Donnell Is Caught
Napping at Start.

Ironside Overtakes
Clean Play in Run Down Stretch.

BELMONT RACE TRACK, Sept. 4 (A.P.)—Robert L. Gerry's Ironsides, 3-year-old gelding, showed a lack of speed when he won the Manhattan Handicap, at 1 mile, here today. He carried 114 pounds and stepped the distance in 1:36, very fast time. Clean Play was second and Pete Wrack third. The latter carried 109 pounds and ran a great race to finish third.

Pete Wrack was miserable, ridden all the way by S. O'Donnell. He practically lost the race right at the start. There was a long delay caused by Eddie O'Donnell and Comstockery trying to line up. When the start came, Pete Wrack was not ready for it, consequently he was away next to last and many lengths back of the leader. O'Donnell, riding him up, thought he was never able to get the flying lead. Meanwhile, Ironsides was racing Clean Play down, and in the stretch Ironsides took the lead and won in a drive by half a length. Clean Play beat Pete Wrack a length and a half for the place. The race was worth $3,675 to the winner. Donny Scores in Romp At Lincoln Fields.

LINCOLN FIELDS, Ill., Sept. 4 (A.P.)—The Rancocas Stable's 3-year-old Donny, going in his best form, won the Oak Glen purse, the feature of an ordinary card here this afternoon. The race was for 3-year-olds and up over the six-furlong journey. Chears, owned by J. A. Jones, and the favorite in the wagering, was second and Princess Edith, from the Royal Stable, was third. Only five started.

Donny was away well and raced in close contact until reaching the stretch, where he took the lead and ran on to win easily by four lengths. Chears, also away well, went into a good lead right at the start and showed speed to the stretch again, when he ran out, then came again to take the lead. The stretch where, close up to the leader, he lunged over to the inside rail and had to be taken up sharply. She managed to take the main end of the stretch by three-quarters of a length.

The event had a net value of $1,000 to the winner and Donny paid $12.52 for $2.

Mrs. R. Pollard's 3-year-old Princeton came back after a rest of two weeks to win the Wolf Lake purse, a night claiming affair, at 1 mile. D. G. Grant, the Okah and A. A. Barron's Crofton in a closely contested finish.

Form players met with reverses in the first five numbers on the program, the winners in the events paying better than $10 to $20.

The weather was sustained by The Talent when Tea Cracker, paying $25 to $2, won the fourth number.

The weather continued clear and the track was fast.

MARY DELLA

A Serial Story
By JULIE ANNE MOORE.

MARY DELLA CHUBB is the best-looking girl in the clock shop. If not in Waterbury, lives with her parents in a Bank street flat.
JOE ROBIN: Limited in S. A. but Mary Della's best girl friend; also a clocker.
JOE SPEAKER: Mary Della's steady. The man she's town good-looking and hard-hailed.
ROBERT CALKIN: 3d. The football star, one of THE CALLS' men.

GEORGE MCKRAY: He wanted to get away from his parents, so he joined him age 18. "Happily" George.

CHARLIE MARABEE: Daughter of fashion. Lives on Cracker Hill. Friend of Robert.

TIMMY FITZMOAN: Petting is his specialty. In love with Mary Della.

OLGA SVENSON: Also a clocker and not too popular with any one.

CHAPTER XXIV.

Robert the Third and George MacKray were just beginning a game of chess when the C. E. and the assistant city editor were received and given chairs.

The C. E. introduced himself and his companion, and accepted one of George's cigarettes.

"We come over from Waterbury," said the C. E., "to ask you if you are protecting a young girl whom I believe to be innocent of any connection with the affair I'm going to tell you about."

"Perhaps—" Robert began, but bowed before the upraised hand and said, "If you'll pardon me," the C. E. explained. "I'd like to ask that you let me tell my story first. Which means I shall put all our cards on the table. I give you my word that I have no shadow truth, as far as I know it. Then you will be in a position to tell me you do not know what I am talking about and order us out; or, perhaps, do what we ask."

Robert and George exchanged a knowing glance, but said nothing.

The C. E. told of the reported murder on the Cheshire road, of the mysterious letter, of the telephone call to the police, and of the general mystery of his conversation with the drug clerk, and of his encounter with the yellow roader after the policeman's ball.

"Frankly," he said when he had thoroughly covered the ground, "I don't know anything. Know, we demand. But the police are on the trail of this girl and sooner or later they will find her and she will of necessity be in an embarrassing situation."

"They are newspaper men, eager to print the news, and particularly when it is news of such character as this would be. But we are far more eager to get the facts, evidence of which I hope you set in our defense to come along rather than to see the information we have to the police."

"If this girl wrote that letter to the police and yet had no other part in the tragedy, I for one would like to see her name kept out of it. But we can't do that, as you can see, running down the murderer, assuming there was a murder, she ought to give that assistance."

The C. E. made a gesture with his open hands to indicate that he had concluded the preliminaries. "Now, Ed, you gentlemen are still ready to wish us a pleasant trip back."

"On the assumption," Robert asked immediately, "that I do know something about this girl, what would you have me do?"

"Arrange a conference between the four of us—the five of us," smiling as George, "so that I may get the straight of it all, the letter and everything."

"But let us consider another case," Robert said. "Suppose, since a yellow car was seen leaving that road, that it was my car, and that I, too, saw all that the girl saw. Couldn't I give the police the information they need and let the girl out entirely? It's merely another hypothetical case, you understand."

"Of course," said the C. E. "But you forget the methods of the police. They are after that girl now. They will find her. Only you will keep her from holding her as a material witness if they identify her. Accepting your hypothetical case as the actual, I would suggest that you tell me everything you know; that you have the girl substantiate your story."

"In return I will give you my word of honor that I will go to the police and give them such information as the two of you give me, explaining the circumstances under which I have gotten it. They may laugh at me, but I will stand by my word, according to the quotation, of $35. She was overjoyed.

"And the girl would never be made to testify," Robert demanded.

"I won't say that Mr. Calkin," the C. E. replied. "It can be arranged in confidence, should certainly not attempt to evade her responsibility there. But I am offering you an opportunity—hypothetically still, of course—to save her from the gallows, and possibly from the hands of the law. On the one hand, she may have saved the entire ordeal; on the other, she may go through months of hell. Do you see?"

"I think so," Robert nodded. He sat back in his chair and considered the girl. Then he placed a finger on George's arm, and said that young man was wearing a decidedly pugnacious countenance.

"It's no use, George," he said suddenly and laughed. "They've got a clear case, and it's death or prison to go direct to the law. Then he turned to the C. E. "I think you're trying to play square with me," he said, "and I'm willing to meet you half way. The yellow roader was mine, and I was with this young lady on the Cheshire road. I'm sure you know where she is. I'll tell you all I know and trust you to protect us both as far as you can, but to protect the girl to the last ditch. There's only one reason why I'll admit there was a girl out there; she was the murderer and I didn't. He damned near broke my head before I knew what it was all about."

"The Clock Shop Clockers," to which Mary Della had looked forward with only casual interest, held more surprise for the pretty little clocker than for the rest of us.

When Pain Comes

Two hours after eating

What many people call indigestion very often means excess acid in the stomach. The stomach nerves have been over-stimulated, and food sour. This corrective is an alkali. And the best alkali known to medical science is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has relieved the stomach of physicians for the past 50 years since its invention.

One spoonful of this harmless, tasteless alkali in water will neutralize instantly many times as much acid and the symptoms disappear at once. You will never use crude methods when once you learn the efficiency of this. Go get a small bottle to try.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. 25c and 50c a bottle—any drug store.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor, Charles H. Phillips, since 1875.

Widow in Dire Need Finds Valuable Stock

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 4.—A story from Pittsburgh's "Wall street" concerns a woman who entered a broker's office and timidly pushed a paper across the counter of the cashier's window and asked if it was worth anything. The cashier examined the paper and said it was. It was a certificate for a share of radio stock, and worth, according to the quotations, $100. The stock was quoted at $35. She was overjoyed.

"In return I will give you my word of honor that I will go to the police and give them such information as the two of you give me, explaining the circumstances under which I have gotten it. They may laugh at me, but I will stand by my word, according to the quotation, of $35. She was overjoyed.

ACACIA CLUB HOST TO MANY VISITORS

Results of Life Insurance Experiment Here Are Found Gratifying.

BOND BUYING IMPROVED

BY THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Evidence of the success of the Acacia Club of the Acacia Mutual Life Association which, when it was organized at the opening of the Temple of Sol, at First street and Avenue of the Americas, was declared to be one of the most interesting experiments undertaken in the life insurance field, is found in figures just made public by President Montgomery.

According to the report from April 1, 1929, the club has been host to more than 1,700 guests. They have come from every state in the Union and at the club they have received every Washington world requiring a club has given them means to make train reservations, arranged sightseeing trips and in the club rooms Acacia members have found comfortably appointed headquarters where they can meet.

Under the original plan for the club, as worked out by Mr. Montgomery, every member of the Acacia Mutual Life Association is eligible to membership in the club, and the club is open to all who have been put during the present vacation season is regarded by Acacia officials as an emphatic seal of approval.

Following is a tabulation showing the number of visitors to the club from the various States of the Union: Massachusetts, 111; New Jersey, 85; Pennsylvania, 110; North Carolina, 85; Tennessee, 85; South Carolina, 41; Georgia, 40; Arkansas, 5; Texas, 7; Rhode Island, 4; Connecticut, 4; Ohio, 12; Oklahoma, 12; Michigan, 22; Missouri, 21; Illinois, 21; Minnesota, 4; Arizona, 1; Oregon, 7; Kentucky, 10; Vermont, 2; Virginia, 18; Florida, 25; West Virginia, 8; Indiana, 14; Iowa, 10; Indiana, 27; Louisiana, 12; Iowa, 1; New York, 18; Kansas, 8; Delaware, 22; Washington, 2, and Connecticut, 4.

Territories and foreign countries are represented as follows: Porto Rico, 1; Germany, 3; England, 1; Romania, 2; Scotland, 2; Poland, 1; Canada, 1; and Haiti, 1.

Bond Buying Improves.

An improved bond and light stock market characterized yesterday's session of the Washington Stock Exchange, the market being a decided quantity exceeding one. Total stock sales were 92, a falling off from Tuesday's session to the extent of 268 shares. Bond transactions averaged $19,200, a $9,000 improvement over the preceding session. The grain selling in Potomac Electric is 66,000, calling for fractional declines from 100%.

Thirty shares of Potomac Electric 6 per cent preferred was in the largest stock trade. It moved at a fractional loss from 112%. Twenty-five thousand shares of Potomac Electric changed hands at 43%, last sale price, and sales of the same amount of Peoples Drug Stores preferred at 14% per cent recession from 120% were also listed.

Freight traffic at Top Level.

Freight traffic is now the heaviest ever reported for this season of the year, according to reports filed yesterday by the railroads with the car service division of the American Railway Association. Total revenue freight for the week ended on August 24 totalled 1,129,333 cars which was not only the highest for any week so far this year, but the highest for any corresponding week on record.

Compared with the same week last year, this total was an increase of 44,353 cars, while it also was an increase of 20,132 cars over the same week in 1927. The total for the week of August 24, 1928, this year, also was an increase of 20,556 cars over the preceding week. This year, increases being reported in the loading of all commodities.

Loading of revenue freight in 1928 compared with the previous year follows:

JURY INDICTS FOUR IN INQUIRY OF GRAFT

Bootlegger Repeats Charges of Paying Officers for Protection.

NEW ACTION ANTICIPATED

Los Angeles, Sept. 4 (A.P.)—The county grand jury early tonight re-investigated the secret police chief's efforts to violate the liquor laws against J. B. Westman, alias Harry D. McDonald and three others, following the confessed bootlegger's repetition before the inquisitorial body of his charges that 20 policemen extorted protection money from him over a period of five years.

Heard Al Evans sing "My Sin" and it's no sin to tell you that he has a splendid voice which I believe will be in "The Virginian," a Paramount feature; Vitaphone has a two-reel entitled "The Man Who Lauged Last," in which Sease Hayakawa and Lucille Lortel are featured; Collected in one place are appearances which I'm compiling "Footlights and Footlights" for First National; Fred Stone, Broadway star, is visiting Will Rogers in Beverly Hills; "Untamed" will be Joan Crawford's new starring vehicle for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and for the same company Ramon Novarro will return to the screen in "Devil May Care." That's that.

Behind the Screens

With DON B. REED

I knew I'd find something in the stack of mail Nelson left for my perusal. A word from Wesley Eddy, who used to M. C. at the Palace. Wesley is opening the new Loew's Kings' Theater in Brooklyn Saturday, added and abetted by Edgars Drug in its first appearance in his picture "Evangeline," and by Jack North who is heading the stage show. While tickled pink with the opportunity of opening a new house, Webster writes that a return to Washington would be more to his liking. Come and see us any time, Wesley!

NEWS OF LATEST HAPPENINGS IN MARYLAND AND VIRGINIA

ROSZEL IS LEADER OF VIRGINIA LEGION

Mrs. E. B. Cameron Elected President of Auxiliary; Convention Ends.

NEW LAWS ARE SOUGHT

Special to The Washington Post. Petersburg, Va., Sept. 4.—This was the final and closing day of the conventions of the American Legion and Legion Auxiliary. Delegates from every state, which have been holding their annual sessions here for the last four days. At today's session much business was transacted and many important resolutions adopted. The election of State Department Commander Blantz M. Rossel, Winchester, formerly first vice commander; first vice commander, Roy C. Thompson, Abingdon; second vice commander, Ernest Action, Jr., Portsmouth; adjutant and assistant adjutant, John C. Elliott, Richmond; chaplain, the Rev. Thomas Hooper Culpeper; sergeant-at-arms, Warren Lambert, Richmond; delegates to national convention at Louisville, Nelson C. Overton, Newport News, and John J. Walker, of Richmond. Two delegates to the national convention were appointed from the various districts. Harrisonburg was chosen for the State convention in 1930.

The convention adopted a resolution today to request the national American Legion to seek legislation to have the Government furnish tobacco, stationery, toilet goods and other accessories for ex-service men in Government and other hospitals. The convention also went on record as disfavoring any reduction in the pay of members of the regular United States Army, and passed resolutions disapproving any act which might be presented to curtail the military training now being given in public schools of the State.

Alexandria to Get Meeting.

The Virginia department approved the selection of Alexandria as the convention meeting place for 1932, as that year will be the two hundredth anniversary of the birth of George Washington. The annual report of Nelson Overton, department commander, was read and approved.

The legionnaires passed a resolution urging that the State Legislature be requested to provide an appropriation of $2,500 annually to 1942 for the education of war orphans at training State and training institutions.

A request will also be made that the State remit to those children tuition and fees to the orphans. A resolution advocating the organization of a body to be known as Sons of Veterans was also passed. Expressions from the floor showed that such an organization should come from the sons and not the legions.

A resolution protesting the treatment of the French and urging them in authority to take steps to prevent a recurrence of the mistreatment of the Jewish population in the Holy Land met with whole-hearted approval.

Another resolution approved the establishment of a memorial to Richland, S. C., Confederate volunteers. Confederate army in the Fredericksburg National Park. The convention approved an appropriation of $500 for the Dr. Brown memorial.

Shade Tree Plan Approved.

The department voted to cooperate with civic organizations and others in the plan to plant shade trees along the State highways. John C. Parker, delegate from the Southampton Post, Franklin, announced that the post had already worked on that plan and that trees had been planted to the county border.

The national convention will be informed that the Virginia department favors the establishment of a national military park at Appomattox and urges the national organization to make arrangements to bring about the creation of Congress urges better hospitalization for World War veterans.

Addressed by Robert Tolson, of the rehabilitation committee, and Col. Lemuel C. Lee, of the New York, recited yesterday afternoon, Col. Lee, second vice president, Mrs. R. T. ROCKVILLE WANTS THIS CHURCH

ROCKVILLE CHURCH MAY BE CONDEMNED

Removal of Presbyterian Edifice Is Sought by County Group.

PROFFER IS CALLED LOW

Petition for condemnation proceedings against the Rockville Presbyterian Church was filed in Rockville Circuit Court yesterday by Capt. Joseph C. Cissel and Charles W. Woodward, counsel for the Montgomery County commissioners. The petition asks that the church property be condemned to make way for the erection of the proposed Montgomery County courthouse and jail.

Capt. Cissel yesterday went to Frederick where the petition was signed by Chief Judge Hammond Urner and Judge John S. Newman. Judge Robert P. Peter also signed and issued an order to the Rev. Henry K. Pasma, pastor of the church, and the trustees of the church to appear before Rockville Circuit Court September 10 to show cause why condemnation proceedings should not be ordered. The church officials will have ten days in which to file answer. Following their first appearance in court, the trustees represented by Harold C. Smith, Rockville attorney, who at present is in Ocean City attending the Maryland department convention of the American Legion, of which he is department commander.

Smith is expected to return Monday from the meeting and will confer with church officials.

Dr. Pasma has declared that the Presbyterians do not desire litigation, but are prepared to carry their case to the highest court in the land if it becomes necessary. The church officials claim that they will be making a great sacrifice for the civic need by accepting $42,000 for their church building and site. They say that they will be forced to move to a much less advantageous location, and that they will have to find a site that will require at least that sum to replace the present building.

County officials have offered $30,000 for the property and site and they declare that they are making a magnanimous offer in the interest of good will and the general welfare. The architect in charge of the courthouse project, Capt. Rossel Mitchell, has told the courthouse building committee and county commissioners that the church can be replaced for $27,000.

Church authorities, on the other hand, contend that the Presbyterians have asked for a church edifice which would not be more elaborate than the present structure and the lowest bid could obtain was $30,000.

The specifications later were found to contain several very important parts of the church. Dr. Pasma declared, and his figures do not include the architect's fee of $2,000 nor the cost of refurbishing the church.

In the meantime, the church trustees have obtained a hearing before the courthouse building committee to take place September 10. In view of this meeting the church people will lay their troubles before the committee and endeavor to show that their demand is equitable.

Should this meeting result in no agreement between the groups, the condemnation suit will be withdrawn. Otherwise, the disagreement probably will be the signal for long drawn out litigation which further will delay the start of construction on the courthouse, which has been the center of many difficulties.

In the meantime, the almost priceless land records and files of the circuit court will remain subject to the element of fire in the present structure which is by no means a fireproof building.

The Presbyterians assert that they are anxious for construction of the courthouse as any other group in the county and that they believe the church has been reasonable as it possibly could be in the premises. They declare that they understand the facts of the case.

On July 1, the Presbyterians offered to give a site which will cost approximately $45,000 in exchange for its present site, which the church people claim is not quite as large as theirs and no more important.

The Boden family, however, are situated just across and should they not be able to get together the courthouse project must be delayed further.

University, Va., Sept. 4.—Eleven separate construction projects are under way at the University of Virginia, one of which is the new library, which is costing nearly two and a half million dollars, is being pushed to completion before the opening of the new session late next week.

This includes the final stages of construction on the new dormitory group of eight buildings and on the new academic building, and remodeling and renovation of nine other university buildings. It does not include construction of any fraternity houses, apartments or faculty homes outside the university grounds.

The eight dormitories, which are costing half a million dollars, will be ready for the students to move in next week.

300 to Be Sheltered.

In the group there will be accommodations for 300 men. These buildings have been constructed with funds loaned by the State.

The new academic building is also nearing completion. This is costing a quarter of a million dollars, which was appropriated by the State. It will provide teaching space for the schools of economics, sociology, political science, commerce and business administration.

All construction has been completed on the new medical building, which cost almost $1,500,000. But work still remains to be done on the oldest hospital building, which is being remodeled to fit into the new grounds.

The eight dormitories, which are costing half a million dollars, will be ready for the students to move in next week.

Changes are being made at the university commons in order that the number of men who are expected to want accommodations when the new dormitories are opened. This work will be completed next week.

Two of the pavilions on the west lawn, and one between the lawn and west range, are being made ready for new occupants. These will be used as homes by Dean John Lloyd Newcomb and Prof. James Southall Wilson and Carroll Mason Sparrow.

Randolph-Macon Reopening Is Set

Women's College to Have Various Improvements by September 14.

Lynchburg, Va., Sept. 4.—Randolph-Macon Woman's College will open for its thirty-sixth session Tuesday September 17, on which day all new students will present themselves for inspection in uniform.

Memorial Service Held.

A memorial service was held yesterday afternoon by Arlington Post, No. 139, American Legion, and the American Legion Auxiliary of Clarendon in Old Towne. Lieut. John Lyon, of the Second District, of which Dr. Brown was a member, The building will be used to make short loans to disabled men without interest.

While money has already been given, the units will be asked to contribute each year to the fund until it reaches a larger proportion.

Children's Work Grows.

The American Legion report showed that this committee had cooperated in every way with the national defense committee, and had fulfilled every requirement. Child welfare work was growing in proportion to its needs, the amount of $1,064,474 had been expended during the year, it was said.

Friends Felicitate Banker of Winchester, Who

Is Now 88.

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., Sept. 4.—Congratulatory messages were being received today from friends in many sections of the United States by James B. Russell, finance man and banker, upon the occasion of his eighty-eighth birthday. The day found him enjoying unusually good health for one of his age and continuing business activity.

Mr. Russell, a native of Winchester, has been a member of the board of directors of the Union Bank ever since it was established in 1864, and has been its president about 48 years. He is said to be the oldest bank president in the South in point of age and service. He is the only person now living who was connected with the institution when it began business 50 years ago.
